AP Bio class discovers what aids in grass growth

Disa Rollinger⁽¹²⁾

"There's nobody like me. I have a twin and we both sing. Also, you never hear of anyone with the name 'Disa'."

Story by Rosalie Evans⁽¹²⁾

In the controlled environment of the greenhouse, Mr. Voytek's AP Biology students conducted a soil lab experiment.

"The students had to determine why grass doesn't grow in specific areas," said Mr. Voytek.

The soil lab experiment presented students with an opportunity to go outside of the traditional classroom to use hands-on learning to apply learned concepts. The class explored the grounds of the school and collected soil samples from various areas using a mechanism called a soil plunger to extract the soil.

"The samples were left to dry out in Kiski's amazing greenhouse," said

Olivia Graham⁽¹²⁾.

After the dirt dried, the students tested the samples for nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, and pH to determine the nutrient content of the soil. Knowing the nutrient content explained differences in plant growth. The hands-on process not only provided students with an educational experience, but it also gave them the opportunity to gain knowledge they could relate to their lives.

"The experiment was fun because it was something that we could apply to real life and see firsthand the effects of nutrients," said Becky Beer⁽¹²⁾.

In her AP Bio class with Mr. Vortek, Brynn Aljoe⁽¹²⁾ collects a soil sample for testing. "I was glad I wore sensible shoes that day, otherwise they would have been caked with mud," said Aljoe. The class spent a total of three days finishing the lab project.

Just after leading off to steal second, Nate Stolarski⁽¹²⁾ dives safely back to first to avoid a pick off. "One game, I got so muddy that you couldn't read the letters and numbers on my jersey," said Stolarski. He started playing ball at a young age with hopes of someday making the major leagues.

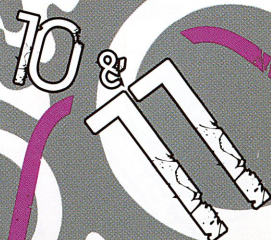

Mortar Man...

With trowel in hand, Kevin Seijo⁽¹²⁾ rolls his mortar for a project in his masonry class. Seijo said, "I change my pants every day and have to wash them because they're so full of cement." Seijo hoped to get a job in the masonry union and live somewhere locally.

Culinary program provides skills for futures

"Fourteen people can fit in the Culinary freezer at Vo-Tech," said Maria DiBiasio⁽¹²⁾, who participated in the tech culinary program for two years.

DiBiasio further said, "The culinary program is great because it gives you training for real life situations in the food service industry in a fun way so that it's not completely boring, even though we'll probably never need to know how many people can fit in a standard culinary freezer."

The culinary program taught students the concepts of baking and cooking, as well as teamwork and kitchen safety. The curriculum, beyond the average foods class, held expectations similar to an actual job.

"I personally am more interested in the baking lessons at tech than the cooking ones. We certainly learned more than just baking chocolate chip cookies and banana nut bread," said Karen Robson⁽¹²⁾.

Instructors graded students on everyday performance and their ability to stay on task. Still, the program had its breakdowns. "The biggest downfall of the program is that we usually only got to eat leftovers, but that was better than nothing," said DiBiasio.

How do angles play an integral role in marching band?

"Push yourself further than you ever thought you could try to do."

Nick McGuire⁽¹²⁾

"I am completely my own person. I don't change anything about myself to impress anyone, and that provides me with a small group of good friends. I never put on a 'mask' for anyone."

Story by Michelle Krynock⁽¹¹⁾

"Angles are important to our (the marching band's) survival. If band members pass through a form, they need to have their flag and form angles correct. Otherwise, we could die," Katie Headley⁽¹¹⁾ said.

Although it sounded dramatic, Headley's statement contained some truth underneath the exaggeration. Horror stories of broken fingers, injured legs, or even whole sections colliding circulated the marching band world.

To prove her point, Headley quoted marching instructor Frank Stanko as he made a lesson of a past mistake.

"A sax player one day went the wrong way, took a wrong turn, and crashed into a whole line behind him. With mouthpieces in their mouths and marching at high speeds, things didn't end up too well. We had to call an ambulance to take a couple kids to the hospital. It's vital to think ahead to where you're going next," said Stanko.

With changes in direction, spinning flags, and falling rifles, band and guard members had to constantly scan their surroundings. Still, awareness of appropriate angles helped to keep all members safe.

While trying to watch the drum major, Katie Robson⁽¹²⁾, Dave Kramer⁽¹²⁾, and Braden Orange⁽¹²⁾ focus on keeping their trumpets at the correct angle. Robson said, "When judged, one guy looks at how perfect our 15 degree horn angles are." The band won their 28th U.S. Regional in Massillon, OH in the fall.

55 Degrees...

In her BC period math class, Alyssa Vermeulen⁽¹²⁾ measures an acute angle with her protractor. Vermeulen said, "I would much rather measure angles than complete proofs." Vermeulen hoped to attend UP for nursing after graduation.

In Line...

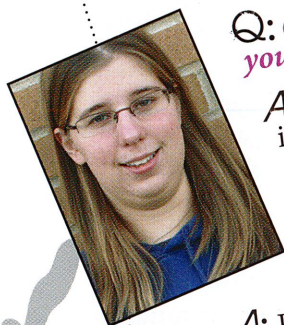

Careful to make sure the wall rests perfectly horizontal and not at a strange angle, Mike Levandoski⁽¹²⁾ levels the blocks. "While angles are important, I'm actually using straight lines here," said Levandoski. He gained most of his inspiration from his father.

Seniors reveal true feelings on project

STAND tall

We all Stand Tall for procrastination.

Story by Lance Jubic⁽¹¹⁾

The mere phrase "research paper" invoked enough fear to make most students seek refuge. Seniors had to complete a notorious research paper in order to graduate. Each student spent countless hours researching a controversial topic of their choosing; these topics ranged from the long-standing argument on gun control to the relatively new strife over stem cell research. After having delved into their subject, seniors wrote a lengthy persuasive paper that utilized the knowledge accumulated as well as personal feelings.

The project, which spanned weeks, rapidly overwhelmed those who did not wisely budget their time. Even those students who usually procrastinate rethought their strategy.

"I definitely won't drag my feet on this," said Tyler Summerhill⁽¹²⁾. Each senior often designated a particular aspect of the project they found exceedingly aggravating. Remarking on required usage of books, David Kramer⁽¹²⁾ said, "It is extremely frustrating."

Deeming all stages distasteful, John Rearick⁽¹²⁾ simply said, "The whole thing is very annoying."

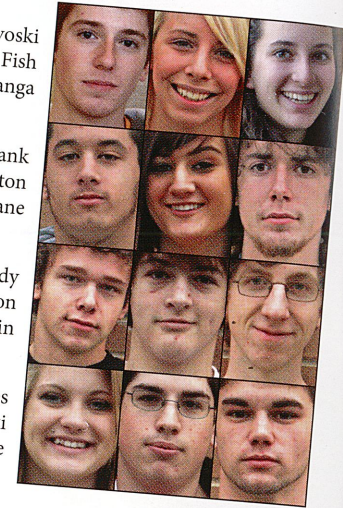

In the end, students varied on their thoughts about the project. Numbers of students found it beneficial, while others did not.

State's best YB staff attends workshop to advance further

Story by Shelby Klick⁽¹⁰⁾

Held at Waynesburg University on October 29, the yearbook staff participated in the Student Media Conference. The workshop held various classes available for students to meet with media teachers to learn different techniques for improving their newspapers and yearbooks.

"In the design class we were instructed on how to think outside the box for designs and themes. We learned how to take any subject and make it into a theme of a yearbook," said Rosalie Evans⁽¹⁰⁾.

Along with learning new techniques, the students met with other yearbook staffs.

"It showed me what other schools did for their yearbooks and showed how our book compared to other schools," said Claire Murray⁽¹⁰⁾.

The yearbook staff challenged themselves to make the current Campus yearbook better than the last by working through the day away from school.

"The staff was able to work together on the countless projects that needed to be completed before the November deadline. The staff rarely gets to meet with almost all of its members," said Ben Doyle⁽¹²⁾.

On the way home from the Waynesburg Media Day Workshop, Megan Arner⁽¹²⁾ contemplates all the work she has to complete for yearbook. "Since it was my first year on yearbook staff, I couldn't believe how much work went into it," said Arner. She, along with three others, wrote all captions for the book.

A student's locker served as a home away from home throughout his/her school years. A locker contained all of a learner's personal items, clothes, books, and class materials. Nowhere else in a public school building could students make such a display of their individualities. The variation from one locker to the next became as great as if one simply walked into the student's bedroom.

When asked about the contents of his locker, Cody Birch⁽¹²⁾ said, "Cloe Kistler got me cupcakes for my birthday, and I keep them in my locker. They smell good, so I guess they are my cupcake air fresheners."

Tyler Summerhill⁽¹²⁾ responded quite differently. "I have a huge stack of newspapers in my locker. It gets bigger all the time. I get newspapers every single day, and I just put them in my locker when I am done reading them instead of throwing them away. Eventually I think I will get around to taking them home and burning them."

Just as each person in the high school differed, the unusual contents of their lockers revealed a great deal about them, and their personalities.

Students find creative ways to fund college

Story by Vince Donatelli⁽¹²⁾

"I plan to gather a band of ten friends and rob the high security vaults of the Belagio, Mirage, and MGM Grand casinos in Las Vegas," said Joe Stopansky⁽¹²⁾ causally. Although most students could avoid high stakes grand larceny en route to funding their higher education, the college price tag proved no joking matter. As seniors received acceptance letters from institutions across the country, satisfaction from over a decade of successful public schooling swept over them. However, that satisfaction proved short-lived as the ensuing financial statement appeared in the acceptance packet.

Jubilation now slightly drowned out by the stark realization of thousands of dollars of future debt, students tried to grasp a realistic plan of attack. "I have been saving up money working as a tutor all throughout my high school career to help pay for college," said Samantha Hessom⁽¹²⁾. Even with years of impending debt breathing down their necks, students showed no signs of panic. Hessom said, "If the whole tutoring thing doesn't work out, being on the reality TV show Survivor is my plan B."

Sweet Treat...

In an attempt to serve a student customer, Anna Gongaware⁽¹²⁾ reaches for a Kit-Kat bar. "I loved the chance to start each day with great people," said Gongaware about her job at the student store. She recalled an embarrassing time when she tripped over a box of sweatshirts and fell on her face.

Q: How did bands like "innerpartysystem" get interested in you?

A: The drummer has a huge crush on me. (Just kidding.) I took pictures of their first show in Pittsburgh before they got popular. Now, they expect me there.

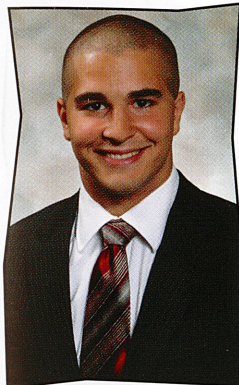

Q: Do you want to do this for the rest of your life?

A: Absolutely. I hope to go to either Drexel or AIP for photography. Hopefully, it will always be a big part of my life.

Daydreams aside, Mr. Heater's Trans Tech class experienced the reality of life on the streets, almost. Assigned with the task of creating a carbon dioxide powered car, students tested their models on a 75 foot track.

"I painted the front of my car black, and painted the back of the car orange. Then I used orange paint on the little wheels

Besides all the fun and games, the carbon dioxide powered car project provided real life learning experiences. Blystone said, "If you work hard like me, you too can break records."

Drive for your freedom

New drivers unveil fearful thoughts

Story by Livy Ciotoli⁽¹²⁾

In a rite of passage into freedom, juniors prepared to earn their drivers permits and licenses. The task carried with it many opinions on the best place to do so.

Brianne Kindler⁽¹¹⁾ said, "I plan to go to New Kensington to complete the exam. It's just the closest to home."

However, Isaiah Webb⁽¹¹⁾ said, "I'm not going to New Ken. I hope to go to Kittanning because I heard that they are a little more lenient there."

Regardless of the location, both Kindler and Webb feared one common, dreaded requirement more than all others, parallel parking.

"Parallel parking is a really difficult thing to do because you have to fit the car into a small, allotted space," said Webb.

Additionally, Kindler said, "I'm really bad at it. While practicing, I accidentally hit the gas and backed into a friend who was guiding me."

To offer advice to future test-takers, Sabrina Yohe⁽¹¹⁾ said, "Go to Indiana. It's the easiest there and they make you feel comfortable. Still, stop at the stop signs for the full three seconds, and don't break out the cell phone to text your bff."

In Mr. Fantaski's 7th period Geometry class, Brianne Kindler⁽¹¹⁾ takes the 4-Sight exam in the library. "The exam was horrible. Everyone knew the answers since it didn't change," said Kindler. All underclass students took the exam four times throughout the year to prepare for the state assessments.

After two years of taking a regular physical education class, students had the opportunity to switch to a gym elective in their junior year. Winter weather causes driving stress

Story by Livy Ciotoli⁽¹²⁾

"One night after ice skating at Valley Sports Complex in Lower Burrell, Vince Donatelli and I hit black ice and spun six times into the opposing lane of traffic. My face smashed off the window and steering wheel. We were lucky to drive away," said Sean Retter⁽¹²⁾.

Retter's story seemed all too familiar for students driving in the hazardous winters of southwestern PA.

Similarly, Katherine Lewis⁽¹¹⁾ said, "One evening on Garvers Ferry Road, Mike Nelson and I were going down my grandmother's lane. It was extremely icy and I lost control of my Jeep. The vehicle's tail end did a 180 and we ended up in a ditch. Mike's dad had to come and tow us out."

A bit further from home, Jessica Barker⁽¹²⁾ recalled her own experience and said, "I was driving home from Hidden Valley and the roads were icy. I was on a back road when my car began to fishtail. I ended up going into a tree and pole off the road. After stopping, I sat there for five minutes to calm down. I called my mom because I was freaking out."

Simply Driven...

Students discuss pet traits

STAND tall

We all Stand Tall for hamsters

How could humans possibly survive without their fine feathered, furry, and finned friends? The addition of pets to families provided entertainment, comfort, and even best friendships for some. The pets differed as much as their owners and many displayed unique quirks.

Concerning his feline, Austin Messaros⁽¹⁰⁾ said, "I have a cat named Chips. She won't eat anything except cat food and Kool-Aid."

Reflecting a less finicky nature, Allyssa Perryman's⁽¹⁰⁾ ferret seemed to feast on a lot more. "Peanut likes to escape his cage at night and get into the cupboards. He especially loves Ritz Crackers," said Perryman.

Some animals' quirks involved more acrobatic moves. "I have a fish named Griz. He does all kinds of flips into the side of the tank. He's not too bright," said Brandon Hawkins⁽¹⁰⁾.

Yet, Eric Anthony's⁽¹⁰⁾ pet seemed much different. "I have a pet rock named Space Jam. He just sort of sits there and collects dust."

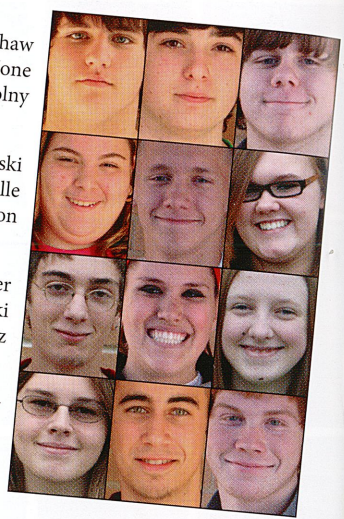

Still, some pets just angered their owners. Cally Mills⁽¹⁰⁾ said, "I have this pet at home named Colby. He has this knack of finding every possible way to annoy me. I'd tie him outside on a chain if he wasn't my brother."

Horsing Around...

As soon as Grace Gongaware⁽¹⁰⁾ walks out into the field, her horses come over to greet her. "Mini-horses are great. I don't think they know how small they actually are. That makes them fun. Seeing them makes my day," said Gongaware. The Gongawares named the horses Chase, Chantilly, and Sadie.

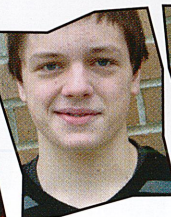

SPEAK out!

If you could speak an animal's language for one day, which would you pick and why?

"I would choose a lioness so I could growl, be intimidating, and protect young ones."

Allyssa Perryman⁽¹⁰⁾

"I would speak sloth because they have big claws and climb up trees."

Austin Messaros⁽¹⁰⁾

"I would speak bird because I like to sing."

Careful to make sure he spreads it evenly, Robert Black⁽¹⁰⁾ strikes the joints with mortar. "You always have to fill the ups and downs before the horizontals," said Black. Both his brother and father worked as masons around the Pittsburgh area.

Electric Eyes...

Careful to make it perfect, Joe Israel⁽¹⁰⁾ solders his led light on to his motherboard project. "I hope to graduate and do something dealing with electronics," said Israel. He and others in his class gained hands-on experience directly related to their chosen fields.

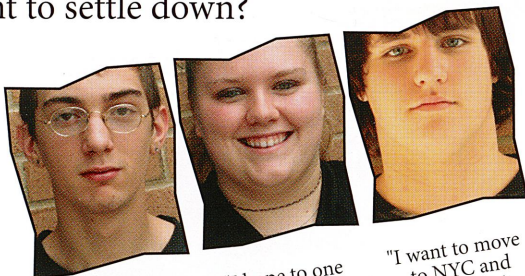

In her commercial arts class, Krystal Kus⁽¹⁰⁾ creates a skull for a plaster casting project. Kus said, "Plaster is really messy. You get it all over everything. Still, it's fun." Of all the art media types, Kus preferred working on the computer in Adobe Photoshop.

Staff reveals specifics of Crazy Dipper Day

Story by Vince Donatelli⁽¹²⁾

"I once successfully devoured the vaunted 'Triple Lunch' on Crazy Dipper Day. The repercussions were severe. Although, after a short stint at Allegheny Valley Hospital, I rebounded nicely," said a basically sincere Jonathan Chepkevich⁽¹²⁾. Although Chepkevich's case proved abnormal, Crazy Dipper Day had more in store than met the eye. Tucked away in an undisclosed freezer in the Upper Cafeteria, over 1,000 cheese sticks, 1,000 bread sticks, and 1,500 chicken O's waited to be awakened from their frost-bitten slumber and united to form the mighty triumvirate of public school lunches. With over 3,500 delectable dippers dunked in 10 gallons of marinara sauce, Crazy Dipper Day fueled more than hungry students; it fueled controversy.

"I guess I would have to say cheese sticks are my favorite. In fact, nothing else comes close," said diehard cheese stick supporter Rachel Wallace⁽¹²⁾. As the battle raged on for the title of Ultimate Dipper, some dipper platforms raised more support than others.

Pro-chicken O visionary Joe Stopansky⁽¹²⁾ said, "Listen, I know I may fall in the minority and I am not looking to be a martyr, but all I am saying is chicken O's deserve the same privileges as any other dipper."

Crazy Says It All

While eating during lunch, Matt Pizarchik savors the flavors of the cafeteria's biggest hit, Crazy Dippers. "Crazy Dipper Day is by far the best day of the whole month," said Pizarchik. More students buy lunch on Crazy Dipper Day than for any other food on the monthly menu.

Armed and Ready...

Needle and thread in hand, Aileen Feeney⁽¹⁰⁾ stem stitches her way to an intricate flower. Feeney said, "It's pretty tricky to make a nice looking Lazy Daisy." Feeney gave the pillow decoration.

Ready to present citrus punch to the teachers who attended the Christmas Tea, Julie Lascek⁽¹⁰⁾ fills punch cups. "We spent weeks preparing for the Tea. I loved the chocolate chip cookies," said Lascek. Each day, she attended Principals of Baking and Pastry class with Mrs. Novak during third period.

Q: What do people think of your accent?

A: People seem to like it. I guess it's pretty interesting to people who aren't used to hearing it.

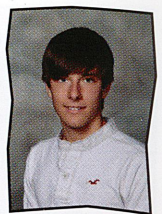

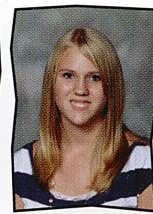

Q: Discuss the major differences between Kiski and Essex in England.

A: Kiski is a lot bigger than Essex. Still, I can pretty much do everything I do at home, like play the guitar and drums, and listen to the chiodos.

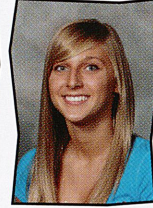

Q: Discuss your first impression of Kiski Area High School.

A: It's a lot different, I guess. The kids here are a lot nicer than in England. At home, it's hard to get through a hallway without being pushed around or called names.

Story by Rosalie Evans⁽¹⁰⁾

Upon their entrance to tenth grade, sophomores experienced new freedoms that they did not have as freshmen. One of these opportunities, show choir, gave students the ability to express themselves through song and dance.

"Show choir offers more freedom for self-expression than in any other activity I can belong to," said Autumn Albert⁽¹⁰⁾.

"By doing show choir, I can express myself to my fellow peers," said David Hampshire⁽¹⁰⁾.

This audition-only group had last year's freshmen excited for their sophomore year.

"I wanted to join show choir because I really just love to sing and dance, so I knew I had to try out," said Alison Misho⁽¹⁰⁾.

"I decided to be in show choir last year after seeing how much fun the older kids had in it," said Christy Teagarden⁽¹⁰⁾.

These students received opportunities to travel, to make new friends, and to grow as people when they joined the upperclass activity.

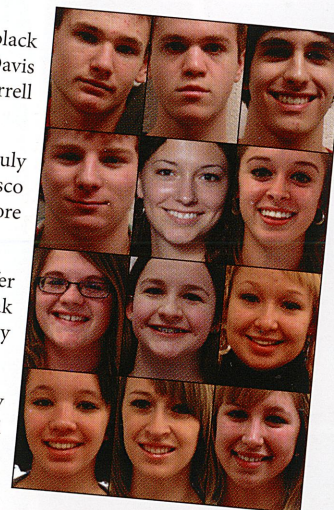

"So many more doors opened this year, and they all bring wonderful opportunities," said Albert.i

Cody Allen⁽¹⁰⁾

"I'm athletic, smart, and friendly. I can get along with just about everybody and I am always up for anything."

Story by Marin Cypher⁽¹¹⁾

Shielding retinas from foreign objects that included both sawdust and chlorine, goggles acquired a distinct reputation across the curriculum at the high school. Autumn Albert⁽¹⁰⁾ wore the safety goggles during her Chemistry class.

"I wear safety goggles during my science labs. The labs are fun but I don't really look forward to wearing the goggles. They're annoying and stick to my face. And they smell icky, like old shoes," said Albert.

The science labs required students to work with explosive chemicals, and also less dangerous entities such as homemade 'gak'.

Still, Amber Baker⁽¹⁰⁾ looked forward to sporting the eye-wear. "I like wearing them, but only if they make me look like a bug," said Baker.

Beyond the science classes, district rules had goggles finding their way into gym classes. Pool class required all swimmers to don them in the water.

"The school's pool goggles are absolutely disgusting. One time when I picked a pair out of the bin, there was a very long hair stuck to it. I learned to bring my own goggles after that," said Yvonne Wilson⁽¹⁰⁾.

Fashion Forward...

After putting on her goggles for protection, Carly Tansimore pours water from a graduate into a beaker. "I recall doing a few tough labs in Mr. Lemmon's class. One involved a microscope and lettuce leaves," said Tansimore. She further said, "The goggles make quite a fashion statement."

You have to give up sight or hearing for a week. Which do you pick?

"I would give up hearing. Sight is definitely the most important sense I have."

Melissa Johnson⁽¹⁰⁾

"I would give up hearing so I can still look at a ton of hot girls."

Frank Evanovich⁽¹⁰⁾

"I would give up sight because I couldn't go a week without music."

With her calculator, Liz Giron⁽¹⁰⁾ works on problem seven for the 4-Sight Exam. Giron said, "If I didn't have my calculator, it would take me forever to finish the test." Students could use their calculators and also a formula sheet to complete the exam.

Perfect Vision

In Mrs. Rae's office, James Ban⁽¹⁰⁾ looks into the timnus machine to get his eyes tested. "I'm not as blind as most people in the school," said Ban jokingly. All students underwent eye exams each year to diagnose vision problems.

Q: What inspired you to start playing the bagpipes?

A: My great grandpap played them and I've always wanted to wear a kilt. This gave me a reason to do so. Sadly, I never had the chance to wear one though.

Q: Have you ever performed in front of a crowd.

"Speech class does not faze me one bit. Before each speech, I sneak on to my iPod, find Eye of the Tiger by Survivor, and set it to repeat. When Ms. Filippone calls my name, I show that speech who's boss," said an eager to self-promote Doug Donatelli⁽⁹⁾.

For some ninth graders, speech proved no more difficult than any other forty-three minute period. However, for others, speech class turned into an instant panic attack.

"Before this year, I've only had to speak a few times in public and it used to make me really uncomfortable," said Caitlyn Ziemianski⁽⁹⁾.

Despite the fear invoked by the mandatory public speaking class, some ninth graders found value in speech class.

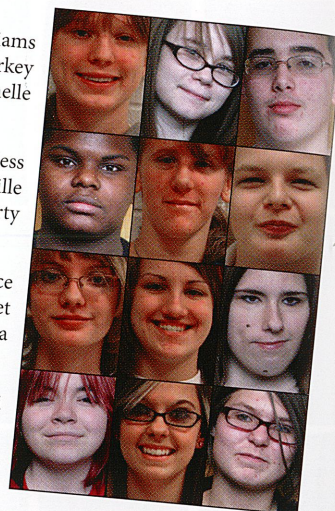

"I think my attitude has really changed. I always hated public speaking. I was scared of messing up or saying something wrong to the audience, but now I'm not scared and I enjoy public speaking," said Tiffani Gregory⁽⁹⁾, with a refreshing, newly found confidence.

Typers, teachers
discuss typing time

Story by Ben Doyle⁽¹²⁾

In today's society, computers have become an integral component of everyday life. To prepare students for their fast paced futures, Mrs. Rebecca Frayer and Mrs. Nancy Gibson challenged students to test their typing abilities.

"On timed-typing days, we open up Micropace Pro and have three tries to repeat paragraphs out of our typing books as many times as possible in three minutes," said Cassie Thompson⁽⁹⁾.

"Timed-typings are a chance to challenge yourself," said Thompson. "You can make it fun by competing with the person next to you."

"If it's timed-typing day, I'm strictly business," said Holly Clemons⁽⁹⁾. "I just set a goal and try to get better every time."

While she had given timed-typings since she started teaching, Mrs. Frayer altered the grading structure. "Mrs. Gibson and I used to base the grades on individual improvement, but now as long as the students have less than eight errors, they receive an A."

As the years passed, Mrs. Frayer noticed an increase in the typing speed of her students. "When I first started, the average student could type about 30 words per minute. Now the average student types about 40 words per minute," said Frayer.

"I can type 68 words per minute," said Thompson proudly. "That's pretty good."

Just My Type...

Proficient at typing, Olivia Berkey⁽⁹⁾ completes a timed-typing in Computer Literacy class. "My best speed is 100 words per minute. My worst is around 50," said Berkey. She also committed herself to never looking at the keyboard.

At a Friday evening choral rehearsal for Peter Pan, Lizzy Wilkinson⁽⁹⁾ looks over her part for Ugg-A-Wugg. "Timing in musicals is essential for a successful production," said Wilkinson. Besides performing in the musical, she played soccer and competed on the track team.

Listen Back...

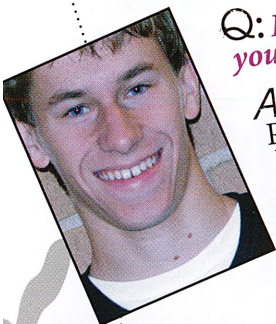

At the state marching championships held at Gateway, Will Sipe⁽⁹⁾ focuses on Mike Mindal⁽⁹⁾ to check his timing. "The pit has the task of trying to listen back to the drum line. If we don't, the whole band will fall apart," said Sipe. He played cymbals, chimes, bass drum, and gong in the show.

Q: How much of your life did you spend in Russia?

A: I was actually born in St. Petersburg, Russia. The Wilson family adopted me when I was about a year old.

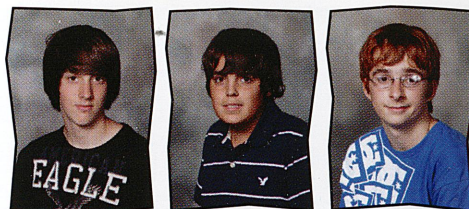

Q: Do you have any plans or desire to visit Russia?

A: I do. I would like to spend about a month visiting Moscow, St. Petersburg, and various parts of the countryside.

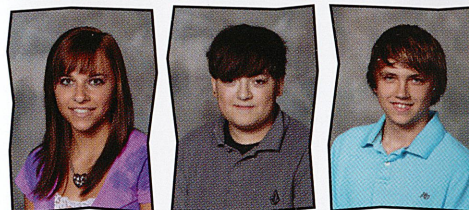

Q: What do you hope to do with the rest of your life and where do you eventually want to live?

A: I would like to become a lawyer or a history professor. I've always loved history, and law interests me greatly. Either one would truly make me happy.

Reasons to dance vary greatly

STAND tall

We all Stand Tall for never growing up

Everyone has busted a move at one time or another, whether as a hobby or just for kicks.

"I dance at Sandra Lynn's School of Dance in Vandergrift," said Hannah Milheim⁽⁹⁾. "I started when I was three, so this would be my twelfth year taking lessons."

Others like Katie Erwin⁽⁹⁾, who did not have experience in dance lessons, took a different approach to dancing. "I usually just randomly start dancing when I'm with my friends or when I'm hyper. It gets a lot of laughs from my friends and I find it fun," Erwin said.

Each person had her own personal reason for dancing.

"I dance because it's fun. I like being able to do something that people think is challenging and for which people can commend me for being able to do it," said Milheim.

"I dance sometimes when I'm angry or upset, but most of the time I dance when I'm happy," said Myaunna Lawhorn⁽⁹⁾.

"It makes me happy and relieves stress," said Patricia Kohler⁽⁹⁾.

Tiffany Yeager⁽⁹⁾ said, "Dancing brings my friends and me together because it lets us share in a common interest."

In stride, Marissa McCullough⁽⁹⁾ approaches the finish line at the Penn State Invitational for cross country. "The Penn State course was a difficult one. It had a lot of hills in it," said McCullough. Besides cross country, she competed on the track team and also on a local softball league.

In the H₂O Zone...

Shortly after the start of the race, Kyle Cernicky⁽⁹⁾ executes the backstroke toward the far side of the pool. Cernicky said, "The hardest stroke for me is the butterfly. It uses a lot of energy." During the summer months she enjoyed swimming in her friend Jackie Cavendish's⁽⁹⁾ pool.

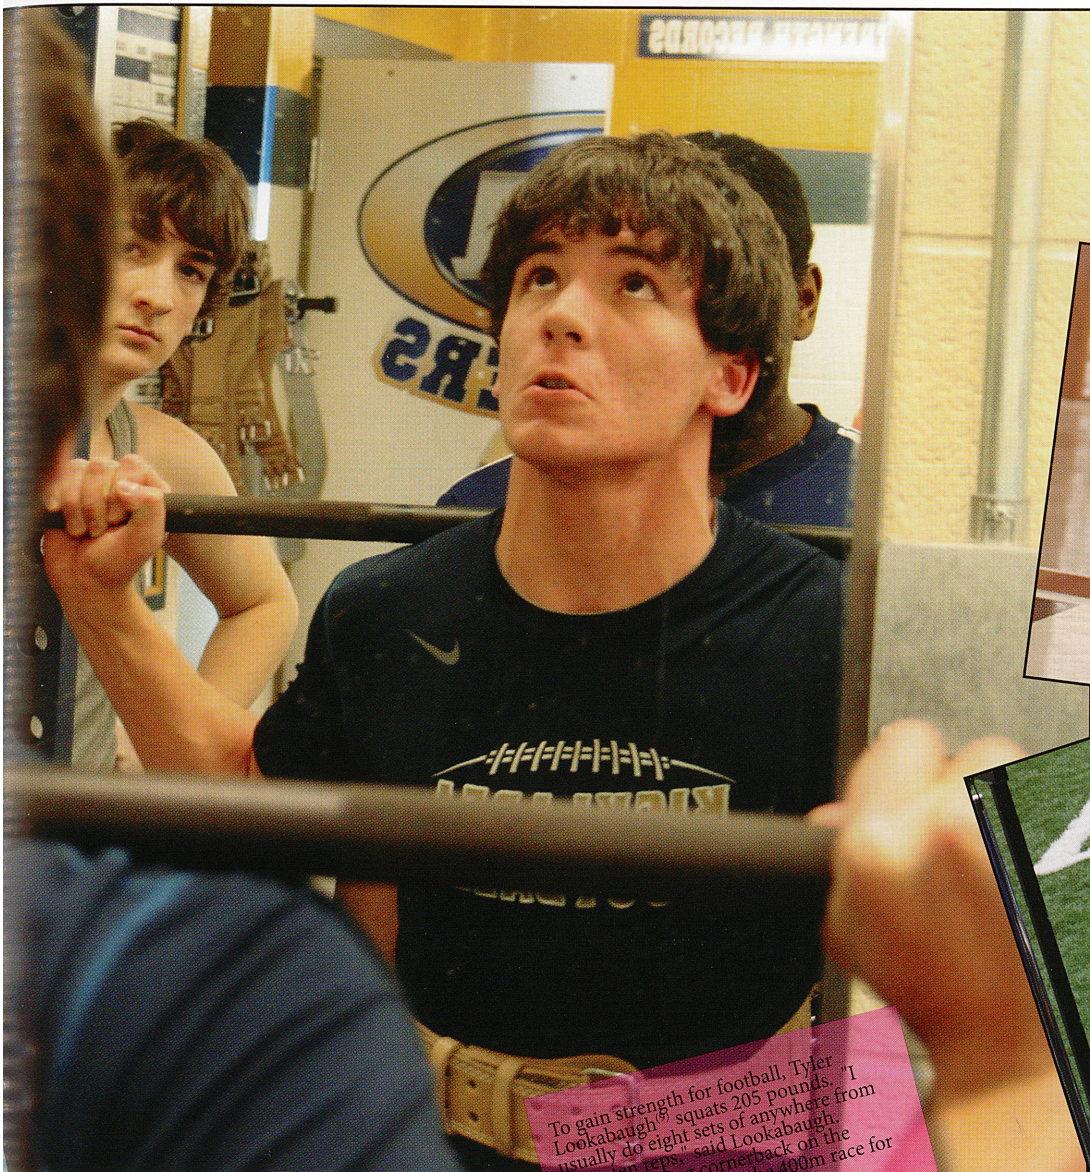

What makes you STAND (out)?

"What makes me stand out is my passion for what I do and what I believe in. It makes me stand out because I think not everyone can show his passion like I can."

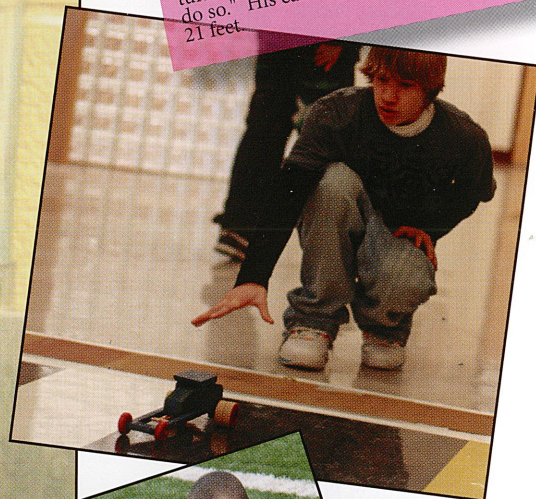

Elijah Eshenbaugh⁽⁹⁾

To gain strength for football, Tyler Lookabaugh⁽⁹⁾ squats 205 pounds. "I usually do eight sets of anywhere from six to ten reps," said Lookabaugh. Besides playing cornerback on the football team, he ran the 400m race for the track team.

Feat of Feet...

In Mr. Heater's seventh period Trans-Tech class, Steven Coniglio⁽⁹⁾ tests his rubber band car for distance. Coniglio said, "I tried my best to keep the car from turning right, even though it tended to do so." His car actually travelled over 21 feet.

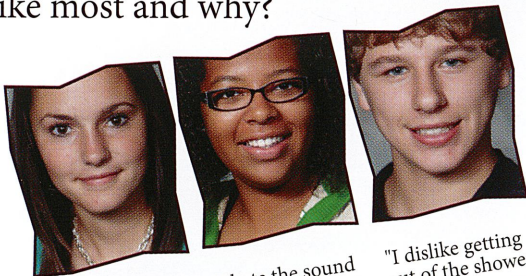

In Massillon, OH, Tyler Lewis⁽⁹⁾ plays the cymbals in the ballad of the band's Pursuit show. Lewis said, "My favorite piece in the show was the closer. It was the most awesome part of the whole show." Besides playing the cymbals, he played the bass drum, the gong, and the chimes.

Guide us to glory

Story by Ben Doyle⁽¹²⁾

From hallway navigation to career choices, freshmen knew to look to the elders for assistance.

"Readjusting to life in high school was tough. With such a big building and so many people, it was rather intimidating at first. I found it was best to try to blend in as much as possible," said Kyle Skelly⁽⁹⁾.

Other students relied on the inspiration of their role models for high school survival. "My role model is Helen Keller," said Jordan Hessom⁽⁹⁾. "She was blind, but she overcame her disabilities. I would hate being blind, but she never complained. To me, that kind of courage is extremely commendable."

Freshmen reveal role models

Some students looked to their role models to enhance their personalities. "If I had to pick my main role model, I'd say Adam Sandler," said Troy Glendenning⁽⁹⁾. "He is very funny. His skits and movies always make me laugh. I try to be like him because I enjoy making people laugh."

Whatever the reason, the freshmen appreciated the chance to count on people with more experience.

"Having my brother in school helped too. I was never too lost in the halls because I knew I could count on him or one of his friends for reliable directions," said Skelly.

Before school every day, Megan Pauller⁽⁹⁾, Marissa Wiles⁽⁹⁾, and Matt Miller⁽¹²⁾ offer thanks and praise to God, their leader. "We all knew that if we started our day with thanks, He would lead us through the day and help us with our work," said Wiles. Over 30 students showed up for prayer each morning.

One Thanks...

First Focus...

During an early September practice, Paul Murray⁽⁹⁾ watches Sara Sheaffer⁽¹²⁾, the drum major, to keep in time. Murray said, "If band members don't watch the drum major, the entire regiment will fall apart." Beside playing trombone for band, Murray sang in the freshman choir.

Q: What or who got you first interested in BMX?

A: My brother, Mike, got me involved. He taught me how to ride a bike when I was under two years old. I rode at a lot of skate parks and it took off from there.

Q: Have you competed against other riders?

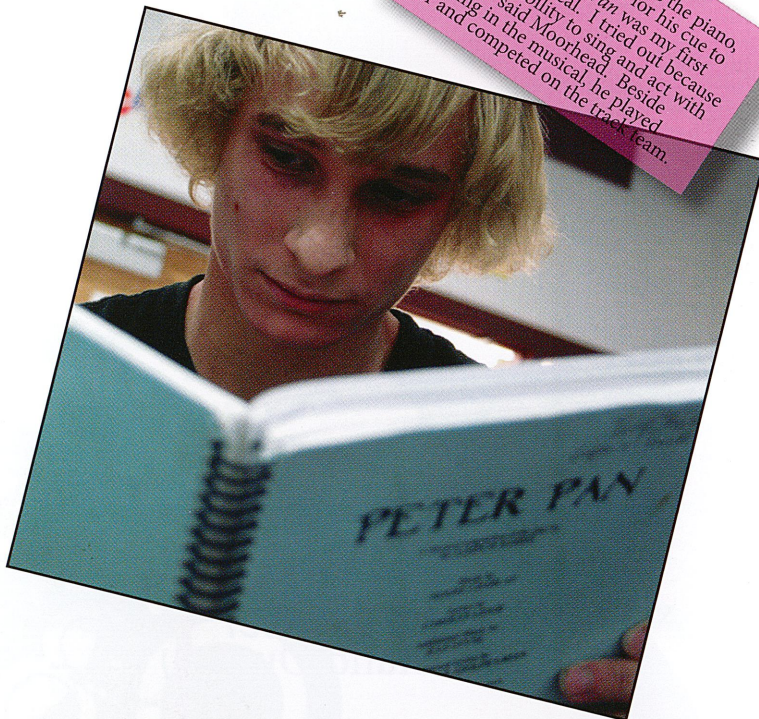

A: Yes. I rode in six competitions, as far as Orlando, FL. I have placed in five of the six events, winning the Barachel Spring Ride in 2009.

Q: Do you have further plans to better your BMX racing?

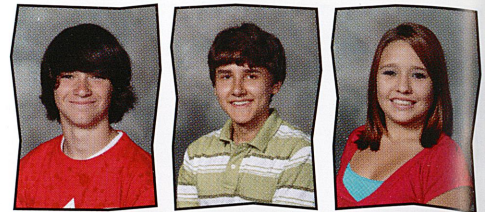

A: I want to become a professional BMX rider. I really like Ryan Guettler and have actually ridden with him. He rules the pack.

Acting Firsts...

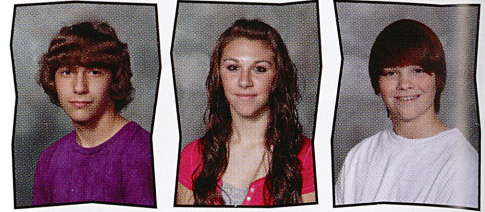

While Mrs. Hampshire plays the piano, Austin Moorhead⁽⁹⁾ waits for his cue to enter singing. "Peter Pan" was my first time doing a musical. I tried out because I just love the ability to sing and act with my friends," said Moorhead. Beside performing in the musical, he played soccer and competed on the track team.

Kazoo lady serenades students

Birthday boys, girls get special, musical treat

Story by Livy Ciotoli⁽¹²⁾

The cafeteria at the high school held many traditions. However, only one involved an enthusiastic lunch lady and her kazoo. For over ten years, Lunch Lady Lil Robron tooted out Happy Birthday to unsuspecting and sometimes unsuspecting students.

"It all started when I received a kazoo from a coworker as a gag gift. She gave me the kazoo to curb my singing in the kitchen," said Robron. "It's just taken off from there."

Some students didn't mind the attention. Aaron Frye⁽¹¹⁾ said, "When she came over toward my table, I just started laughing because I knew what she was going to do. It wasn't that embarrassing, but all eyes were definitely on me."

Still, Jordan Moratti⁽¹²⁾ said, "I'm not going to lie, it was totally embarrassing."

Byron Brown⁽¹¹⁾ thought differently when he said, "Quincy went up and told Lil that it was my birthday, even though I told him not to. When she came over to my table with that kazoo, I wanted to die."

Regardless, Robron said, "Now, I play the kazoo so that every kid gets something special on his or her birthday."

A lower cafeteria tradition, Lunch Lady Lil serenades Blayze Stefaniak⁽¹²⁾ on his 3rd of December birthday. "When you see Lil coming out of the kitchen with her kazoo, you know someone's really in for an embarrassing treat," said Stefaniak. After her song tributes, Lil gave each birthday person a free cookie.

A: Klink definitely is the boss. He has free reign over the whole house and Margarita doesn't yet. He also only lets her play with certain toys. She's not very happy about that.

Reign of the rain

Rain invades Homecoming festivities

In one of the most torrential storms to flood Davis Field in the last decade, the football team bolted to an 18-7 win over Fox Chapel in the Homecoming Game. Likewise, Tori Brungo⁽¹²⁾ fought against the horrible weather to keep composed, to look noble, and to capture the crown, despite the violent storm around her.

Of the game, football player Josh Taylor⁽¹²⁾ said, "The weather was really nasty, but it made it a fun game to play because of the environment."

The Homecoming Court consisted of Tori Brungo⁽¹²⁾, escorted by Mike McCutcheon⁽¹²⁾, Allison Gemza⁽¹²⁾ escorted by Grant Pavlik⁽¹²⁾, Kathryn Summerville⁽¹²⁾ escorted by Colin Martin⁽¹²⁾, Allie Carter⁽¹²⁾ escorted by Andre Frye⁽¹²⁾, Ashley Bistline⁽¹²⁾ escorted by John Chepkevich⁽¹²⁾, and Kayli Duppstadt⁽¹²⁾ escorted by Austin Oblack⁽¹²⁾.

Despite muddy stilettoes and wet, tangled hair, the court did their best to manage a state of composure.

"There was so much rain and mud on the field that I could think of nothing except losing a shoe in front of the crowd. Luckily, nobody did," said candidate Duppstadt.

Pumped Up...

With heels aligned, court members stand ready to march in the parade through Vandergrift before the Homecoming festivities. Kayli Duppstadt⁽¹²⁾ said, "I made sure I walked on my toes so that my heels wouldn't sink into the field." The rain let up a bit for the parade, but returned with a vengeance for the game.

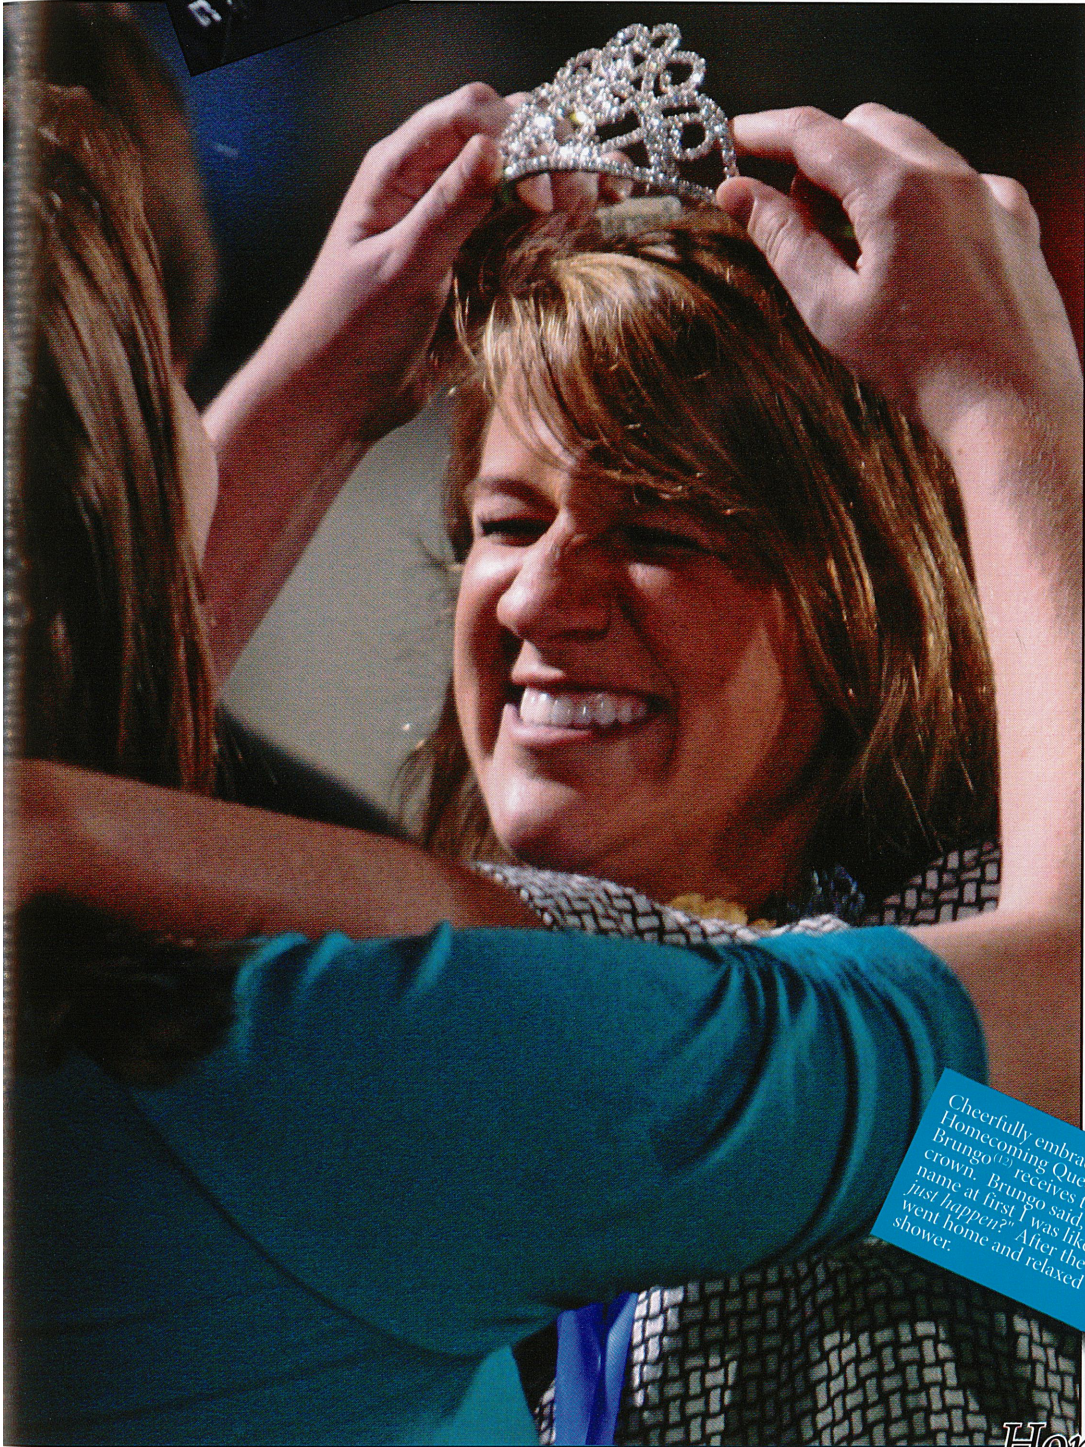

Muddy Madness...

Intently hoping for a third down defensive stop against Fox Chapel, Mike Feroce⁽¹⁰⁾ and Brandon Hawkins⁽¹⁰⁾ focus on the flooded field. Hawkins said, "Teams that play on turf aren't as good on mud." Hawkins also said that he hated playing Woodland Hills the most because of their speed and size.

1 "My parents were jealous because my mom was runner-up in her high school homecoming," joked Homecoming Queen Tori Brungo⁽¹²⁾. 2 Kathryn Summerville⁽¹²⁾, Allie Carter⁽¹²⁾, Tori Brungo⁽¹²⁾, Allison Gemza⁽¹²⁾, Kayli Duppsadt⁽¹²⁾, and Ashley Bistline⁽¹²⁾ get "ugly" for the traditional Homecoming shot. 3 Mrs. Schaeffer's daughter, Erin, served as crown bearer for the event. 4 "It hasn't rained on Homecoming for years. My first year in charge, it poured! Also, next year, I will hold the crown until it's time to walk across the field," said adviser Mrs. Gibson.

Queen Coronation

Cheerfully embracing former Homecoming Queen Grace Evans, Tori Brungo⁽¹²⁾ receives the Homecoming crown. Brungo said, "When I heard my name at first I was like, 'Wait, did that just happen?' After the game, Brungo went home and relaxed with a really hot shower."

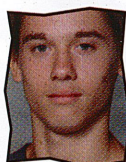

Cheap Trick...

In Mr. Tursky's second period gym class, Aaron Carter⁽¹⁰⁾ takes a shot at the goal. "Playing hockey in gym class gets really heated." Even though the sticks are soft, they can be lethal in cheap shots," said Carter. He served as captain of his hockey team that day.

Students express gym class feelings

"No learning from a book for forty minutes, that's what I love about gym class," said Brandi Ritenour⁽¹¹⁾.

Gym class offered students a break from their difficult academics and presented an opportunity to enjoy themselves outside the confines of the sometimes stifling, suffocating classroom.

The maelstrom of human projectiles combined with frantic swinging of sticks made hockey an instant favorite of students. "The game can get pretty intense. I was jabbed in the eye by a hockey stick one time and lost a contact. Needless to say, I did not stop to find it," said Michele Milhiem⁽¹¹⁾.

On the other hand, certain students also had their own opinions about swimming in the pool.

"I absolutely detest swimming. Your eyes water from the chlorine the moment you step inside the room. And try as you might, you will not be able to wash it away from your skin. A noxious cloud follows you the rest of the day. I do like to float though or just have my feet in the water," said Jenna Galley⁽¹¹⁾.

A portion of the students did not prefer any type of activity over another. "Just being with friends and getting away from a classroom makes my day," said Ritenour.

Players utilized nearly 20 different stretching techniques, proceeded to 5 minute position workouts, and then performed offensive and defensive drills. Defensive tackle Ben Yaconis⁽¹²⁾ said, "I thought that going through the team offensive and defensive drills helped me to get more prepared for each game."

Offensive tackle Andrew Scatena⁽¹¹⁾ said, "The Cavalier jumping jacks got me the most pumped up for the game." Overall, the warm up activities helped to keep players safe and agile for the games.

MUSIC, Slim-Jims, and war songs

Players reveal pregame rituals

Football players had unique rituals that they performed before playing each game. Some of the rituals may have seemed silly, but some truly helped the players to get into the mind-set to perform at their very best.

A.J. Reed⁽¹¹⁾ said, "I always listen to rock or metal before a game to get pumped up."

Tyler Lookabaugh⁽⁹⁾ said, "Before every game, I went to the bathroom, just in case. And I always ate a single Slim-Jim."

"I listen to my music to get pumped up, and I visualize the victory. I make myself fear defeat," said Nate Brown⁽¹²⁾.

Captain Tarique Godson⁽¹²⁾ said of his pregame routine, "I wear two pairs of socks for a game, and I try to get loose. I have to be moving, and I just can't sit still. I put on some music and zone everything out. Also, I clean my gear, because you have to look good to play good."

Captain C.J. Bryan⁽¹²⁾ said, "I listen to music before games, like rock and metal. I have to give 100 percent, every play."

Eric Saul⁽¹¹⁾ said, "Before every game, I painted my face like a savage Indian, built a fire, and danced around it while singing war songs."

E-I-E-I-O...

Just at the start of a home fall football game, Ashley Ardellitz⁽¹¹⁾ cheers on the defense. "I just got one thing to say...C-A-V-S, go Cavs," said Ardellitz. She further said, "The quickest way to get the crowd into the game was to do the E-I-E-I-O chant. It did the trick."

Cheer your heart out

Stunts require more than most realize

Everyone saw them at the football games and pep rallies, but not many realized the time and pain that cheerleaders endured to entertain the crowd with impressive stunts.

"We do a range of stunts from preps to extensions, libs, scorpions, scales, full downs, double downs, and then different types of pyramids," said Brooke Churma⁽¹¹⁾, as she explained the multiple stunts the cheerleaders performed in their routines.

Cheerleaders practiced nearly year-round to perfect their routines.

"Basically, we have about three practices a week from July to March," said Keisha Zuchelli⁽¹²⁾.

The cheerleaders relied on their rigorous conditioning to keep them from crashing to the mats.

"You need to work on balance and flexibility to be able to hold your weight to have a successful stunt," Ashley Klingensmith⁽¹⁰⁾ said regarding their training.

"Danger is a hidden element of cheerleading. It is definitely a contact sport," said Zuchelli.

"Every new stunt or pyramid we try for the first time is dangerous because we never really know how it will turn out, or if it might fail."

Story by Shelby Klick⁽¹⁰⁾

Many Decisions...

After deciding on a cheer for the defense, members of the squad perform for the crowd to pump up the team. Concerning the pregame schedule, Becca Laero⁽¹²⁾ said, "After we stretch, we do warm up stunts. Then, we practice our tumbling and together decide on which cheers we will do between quarters."

1. Taylor Pollick⁽¹¹⁾ said, "Cheerleading is full of different experiences. We have to cheer on the athletic teams and also show school spirit." 2. "I Brianne Small⁽¹¹⁾ said, "I learned how to do splits at dance when I was younger." 3. "The stunts I fear most are the full downs. Anyone in the group could be taken out if we mess up," said Lexy Switzer⁽¹¹⁾. 4. Keisha Zuchelli⁽¹²⁾ said, "Of all cheers we do, I like Defense Party Time the best."

Under the bright blue Davis Field sky, the varsity cheering squad forms a pyramid. "You have to really trust your teammates when they have to hoist you way up into the air," said Janice Legge⁽¹⁰⁾. The squad had a reservoir of four pyramids to build in front of the crowd.

Triangle Trust...

Feel the Sting...

At the home game against Bethel Park, members of the cheering squad perform scorpions for the home crowd. "It takes a lot of stretching to be able to perform a scorpion," said Keisha Zuchelli⁽¹²⁾. Besides this stunt, the girls performed heel stretches, basket tosses, pyramids, and scales.

POZAK British or else

(Cast reveals accent learning thoughts)

The fall play, The Importance of Being Ernest, had a cast of nine students. In addition to memorizing lines and creating a set from the 1800's, the students had to master British accents.

"It was hard to distinguish what words should have British sounds and which words should have the American sounds," said Alison Misho⁽¹⁰⁾.

While auditioning for the play, all students had to say a few lines in a British accent. Hence, cast members knew that the accent became paramount. Still, director Ms. Filippone had a few tricks to make the cast perform even better.

"We listened to CD's of a British accent coach," said Cara Suni⁽¹¹⁾. "British movies definitely came in good use to help perfect my accent. Just listening to people talking in the accent helps to get your mind flowing in how to sound like you actually do have a really cool accent," said Misho. "I had my dad help me a bit since he is from England," said Phil Byford⁽¹⁰⁾.

The cast had some preconceived worries about the accent requirement, but upon investigation, all nine members agreed that they truly did their best to accomplish the task.

Some students just stand out

"I'm crazier than anyone else I know," said Delanie Pacifico⁽¹¹⁾. A loud, vibrant personality helped to set her, and others like her, apart from other students. The bold voice from a huddled girl generally dressed in dark clothing surprised each student who met her.

"People sometimes stare at me when I shout to a friend down the hallway," said smiling Pacifico⁽¹¹⁾. Katie Headley⁽¹¹⁾ said, "I still jump when I hear her talk sometimes."

Always colorfully dressed, Cloe Kistler⁽¹¹⁾ frequently earned the laughter of the class with her rejoinders and cheeky observations. "I speak my mind very loudly and don't care what people think about me," said Kistler.

Story by Lance Jubic⁽¹¹⁾

"Cloe has made me laugh so hard, I cried and my side hurt," said Dominique Carino⁽¹¹⁾. However, Carino exhibited distinctiveness of her own. Standing below five feet and having a restrained voice, she caught the eye of passing students with unique clothing accessories.

"In my hair, I wore a flower we made in Spanish class. It was made with three different colors of pretty tissue paper. My friends were so jealous that none of them could pull it off like I do," said Carino. Interestingly, the individuality of students displayed itself not in tattoos or piercings, but rather in reverberating echoes in the hallway and tissue paper flowers.

Shoes truly matter most

Runners express importance of good shoes

They ran up hills. They ran across fields. They ran down the road. With all that running, how did they protect their most valuable resource, their feet? Certainly, good shoes became paramount for the members of cross country.

Madison Rumon⁽¹¹⁾ said, "I love running barefoot, but you just have to watch for rocks. Good shoes are really important for me though, because I have high arches and I need a lot of support on the balls of my feet. I only run in Saucony Grids. I don't train in other shoes, and I don't even race in spikes because they hurt my feet."

Kayla Diller⁽¹¹⁾ said, "My running shoes are a basic need, right behind food. I'm currently using New Balance shoes, but I do prefer Brooks."

Both of these runners determined that their footwear truly impacted the success of their running. As tires represent one of the most important parts of a car, in the case of these human racers, their shoes ranked second only to their competitive spirits and well conditioned bodies.

Careful to step on the base, Shane Skelly⁽¹²⁾ safely avoids the tag going to third. "If you hit a home run, you don't have to worry about running and stealing the bases," said Skelly. He hoped to attend Slippery Rock University for accounting and would play collegiate ball if asked.

1. "If you're in good enough shape for hockey, then you don't need conditioning or plyometrics," said Eric Weyant⁽¹¹⁾. Prior to the baseball game, Weyant played hockey with his friends. 2. "When it was time for Zach Petro to hit, he always came through," said Cody Thompson⁽¹²⁾. 3. "You have to be ready for every pitch because anything can happen," said Billy Emerick⁽¹¹⁾. He credited his vertical jumping abilities to plyometrics. 4. "To achieve the perfect swing, you have to practice hard, make sure that your bat is level, and get your hands to the ball," said second baseman, Joe Stopansky⁽¹²⁾.

Safety Zone...

Trade bats for sticks

Team embraces fluke event through whole season

"When we traded our metal bats for plastic sticks, there was a completely different atmosphere at practice," said Jon Shaffer⁽¹²⁾, referring to the foam tipped, plastic gym class hockey sticks that the baseball team played with during down time.

"They started as slacking devices, we would pick them up when the coaches weren't looking and try to take a few shots at the net with the numerous practice balls that were scattered on the gym floor," said Vince Donatelli⁽¹²⁾. The trend, however, quickly caught on. By midway through the season, the team would regularly stay after practice for pick-up games.

"The coaches started to almost encourage hockey. Coach Stasko used to be a goalie so he'd even play with us. I think it made him feel young again," said Cody Thompson⁽¹²⁾.

By the time the baseball team entered into the WPIAL semifinals, gym class hockey had become a pre-game ritual. "While one player batted in the cage, everyone else played hockey. Still, there was more to it than slacking off. Those plastic sticks brought our team together," said Shaffer.

Great Advice...

To help recoup from a bad throw, Coach Austin instructs Nate Stolarski⁽¹²⁾ to always hit his cutoff man. Stolarski said, "My experiences in this past year's playoffs were great. To have such a turn around season in the matter of a year was amazing." He played on the varsity team for two years.

After a heat of the moment decision to run, Cody Thompson⁽¹²⁾ returns to third base at the pitcher's call. On pregame anxiety, Thompson said, "When Cody Thompson has a bat in his hand, there is no fear." He gained inspiration from his idol, Manny Ramirez.

Cody Confidence...

Quick Eye...

With his eye on the pitcher, Tyler Garrone⁽¹²⁾ shortens the distance to second base. Concerning superstitions, Garrone said, "I never wash my socks after a win." Garrone didn't play for the name on his back, but instead he played for Aly Gemza⁽¹²⁾.

"Good Morning, Kiski. Will everyone please rise for the Pledge of Allegiance, and remain standing for a moment of silent meditation..." became the familiar opening to every student's day.

The staff of GMK had very strict routines to follow to make sure that the technology ran smoothly. Tess Hempel⁽¹¹⁾ commented on her routine and said, "First thing, I stop in the studio to turn on Channel 1, and then check in with my homeroom teacher. Then, I bolt to GMK for show time."

Olivia Ciotoli⁽¹²⁾, sound editor for GMK, said, "I sprint into GMK at the very last minute and pick out a song that no one else likes. Then I attempt to run the soundboard, but usually end up failing by deafening everyone. It's called professionalism."

With so many different machines, the staff admitted it became hard to keep track of everything. Christine Arick⁽¹²⁾, manager of Set Design, commented on the shenanigans and said, "Once, Livy left the microphones on and the whole school could hear us chatting. Let's just say everyone knows about a certain teacher's crush on the new, cute tech guy."

simplicity

High school students have come a long way from the scheduled nap times and recess, but that has not stopped today's young adults from reaching their inner child. Even when the stress and responsibilities of oncoming adulthood became significant, the joys of childhood never got too far out of reach. Everyone had a different approach to find his or her true self.

"I reach my inner child by watching beautiful Disney movies such as Mulan and Aladdin," said Carly Tansimore⁽¹⁰⁾.

"I play board games, go to parks and swing on swing sets, and I also play on the slides," said

Defense player Rachel Hollinger⁽¹⁰⁾ said, "I did my best to play the game well and become the best that I could be." Still, forward Adam Ballish⁽¹⁰⁾ said, "I wanted to be more aggressive on the field and more supportive off the field." Collectively and ironically, the main goal involved more goals for all. However, setting individual objectives made that task seem a bit easier.

Rides did bonding process

Players find ways to shorten long bus rides

Forty minutes of soccer in the freezing rain felt agonizingly long for the girl's team, but the hour long bus rides flew by too quickly. From Hampton to Pine Richland to North Allegheny, the girls racked up a lot of time together on the bus and they used that time to come together as a team.

"The bus rides really helped us get to know each other better and to actually become a team," said Jessica Lewis⁽⁹⁾. "Cath-A-Phrase, intense conversations, and singing songs of course," said Morgan Waddell⁽¹⁰⁾ to describe the common types of bonding. "We enjoyed bursting into random song and jamming to Party in the USA," agreed Carly Tansimore⁽¹⁰⁾.

The girls used the relaxed environment of the bus ride to calm their nerves before they had to get focused and play their game.

"The last bus ride home from Highlands was pretty emotional," said Waddell.

Waddell made it clear that the girls bonded so much through the season that it became hard to say goodbye when the season finally ended.

Golfers recall surprising events of season

The season brought on the unexpected for members of the golf team. From hilarious tee offs to astonishing match wins, the season proved to become one of most memorable in terms of triumphs and one of the most surprising for others.

Golf, in itself, certainly relied on calculation, judgment, and control. On the importance of a club selection, Brandon Hilty⁽¹¹⁾ said, "Club selection is crucial to the shot." However, a player can fail even with the best of endeavors. Kyle Horrell⁽¹¹⁾ acknowledged this when he said, "Sometimes it's better to be lucky than good." Luck was certainly not on the side of player Aaron Carter, who had quite an unforeseen tee off. "Aaron hit a tree off the first tee and ended up 25 yards behind his original spot," said Hilty⁽¹¹⁾ smiling. Perhaps the win over Shadyside represented the biggest surprise of the season.

"We know it as The Great Upset of Shadyside Academy," said Horrell⁽¹¹⁾. Steve Golembiewski⁽¹²⁾ said, "They have always beat us in the past and we expected no different this time. With most of the Shadyside team practicing at clubs like Oakland or Fox Chapel, we knew we were on uneven footing." Certainly, skills, judgment, and, of course, luck helped make the overall season one for the ages.

"The hardest part of the game was trying to keep your head in it and not getting frustrated with yourself," said Louisa Gibson⁽⁹⁾. About choosing a club Chelsea Thompson⁽⁹⁾ said, "My favorite club to use was definitely the driver." "The biggest issue with my swing is the dreaded slice. Honestly, it's probably the worst around," said Kyle Horrell⁽¹¹⁾. "I thought playing golf would be a fun sport and my mom was the coach. I had an awesome year and plan to be on the team again," said Theresa Gibson⁽⁹⁾.

Swing Shot...

Just after crushing a drive 320 yards, Steve Golembiewski⁽¹²⁾ hits his approach shot into the seventh hole. "In matches, I prefer to play really easy courses that I can score on, rather than extremely difficult ones," said Golembiewski. He actually birdied the shot, which helped the team to defeat Shadyside Academy.

In the middle of the toughest match of the year against Pine Richland, Tori Hepler⁽¹²⁾ reads her putt for accuracy. "The seventh hole is a pretty hole, but it has a huge, annoying out-of-bounds on the right," said Hepler. She most loved hole five, where she got her first eagle.

Eye It Up...

Birdie Bound...

Crouched near the ground, Abbey Empfield⁽¹⁰⁾ lines up for her birdie shot. "If I am not concentrating while I'm playing golf, there is no possible way that I'll have a good game," said Empfield. She severely disliked playing on cold days or in rainy weather.

To some, nature became a frightening, formidable place. To others, it was a place where they could go to relax, to have fun, to find food, or to find a challenge ready to endure.

Jeff Lorent⁽¹¹⁾ used the outdoors to find food. "I hunt anywhere I can with my dad and my grandpa. We hunt small game and big game. For the small game I use a 12 gauge shotgun. For big game like deer, I use a 30-06 rifle."

Tess Hempel⁽¹¹⁾ looked to the outdoors to find a challenge for herself and her horse. "Barrel racing is just as tough and challenging as any other sport."

Conditioning and practice matter, and sometimes, a mishap can quickly change things to make it a contact sport. However, in barrel racing, you are not in complete control of your performance, and as always, the stopwatch waits for no one.

Elliott Baker⁽¹¹⁾ found a relaxing way to spend his time outside, although it sometimes turned dangerous. Elliott said "One time while I was scuba diving in Grand Cayman, a shark swam up from a coral bed just three feet from my face. Thankfully it was just a nurse shark and swam away."

Odors, burns, rashes, and

Sport takes its toll on swimmer

"Being in chlorine everyday is sometimes not fun. Swimmers are permanent scratch and sniff stickers. The scent of chlorine gets embedded in our skin so every time we shower, sweat, or put on lotion, chlorine is all you can smell," said Vanessa Costanza⁽¹²⁾ emphatically.

Besides the pungent odor produced by the pool and its inhabitants, the chemical chlorine-based concoction tossed into the water also proved damaging, at least aesthetically.

"The chlorine and water seriously dries out my skin and causes problems. The team has had many cases of itchy rashes, so most swimmers stocked up on body lotion," said Costanza.

With the bulk of the swim season held in the blustery winter months, the frigid temperatures factored into the skin damaging mix.

Chris Cernicky⁽¹²⁾ said, "It's really not a healthy combination. First, you get the chemical burn brought on you by the over-saturated chlorine water. Then, you throw in the unforgiving drying effect of Western Pennsylvanian winters and your skin is trashed. Even Eucerin cannot save you."

Stuck in the box

Players ponder penalty power

"As an aggressive hockey player, I frequented the penalty box," said Colin Maloney⁽¹²⁾. The hockey team called the penalty box the "sin bin" for a reason.

"It seemed that in every game, I was stuck in there," said Brandon Donnelly⁽¹⁰⁾. Two minutes became a long time for one of the hockey players to sit during a highly intensified game.

"I swear the referees were never on our side. The calls were always one sided, as if the other team wasn't even there," said Nick Faletti⁽¹¹⁾.

Story by Ryan Wasilchak⁽¹²⁾

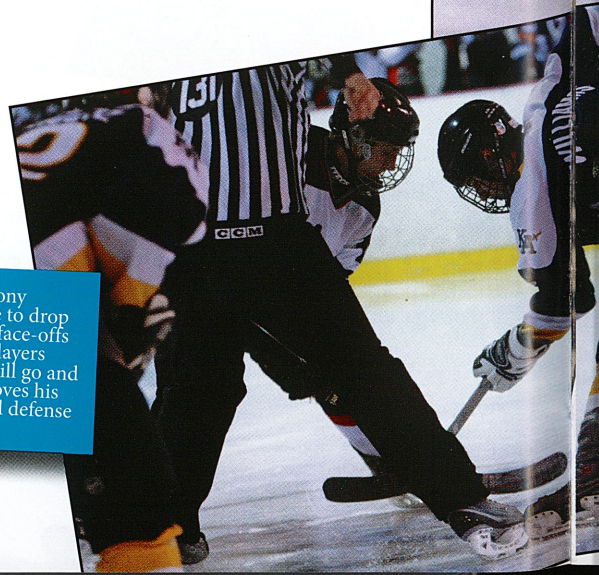

"The box certainly gave me time to think about what I had done, in a juvenile sense," said Tony Williams⁽¹²⁾. The boys compared the box to the "in the corner time-outs" from their childhoods.

"We got so many penalties that we were on the verge of losing our coach for a game," stated Pete Schultz⁽¹²⁾.

Had the team accumulated fifteen penalties, the coach would have received a game misconduct. "That just goes to show the power of the box," said Schultz.

Face to Face...

Ready for the face-off, center Tony Williams⁽¹²⁾ waits for the referee to drop the puck. "The key to winning face-offs involves a couple things. The players need to know where the puck will go and have to act as soon as the ref moves his hand," said Williams. He played defense during power plays.

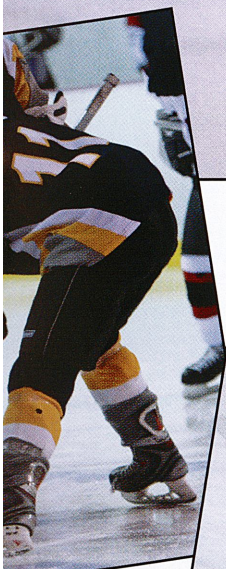

Focused on the puck in a game against Ligonier, Nick Faletti⁽¹¹⁾ races down rink to score. "Ligonier was our big rival this year. Every game we played against them was a tough one," said Faletti. After meeting two times, both teams had two wins.

Telethon requires diverse tasks

Temperatures had dropped and snow had fallen, but inclement weather had not affected the Student Council Telethon. The members of Student Council stood outside K-Mart during a week in December to collect donations for Salvation Army and Saint Vincent de Paul.

"Everyday one of my extremities went numb, whether it was my toes, fingers or nose," said Kate Iseman⁽¹¹⁾.

The Student Council members took on a variety of jobs to solicit as many donations possible.

"I worked at the Telethon selling raffle tickets," said Kara Bayer⁽¹⁰⁾.

"It's the nicest job because you get to stay inside where it's warm."

"I had fun at the Telethon ringing the bell for the charities," said Nick Despotakis⁽¹⁰⁾.

A combination of the Ping Pong Tournament, the Telethon Talent Show, a silent auction, volunteers, and free hot chocolate and hot dogs all contributed to the Telethon's success.

"The Telethon is a great way to get the student body involved with raising money for the community," said Jenna Herstek⁽¹²⁾. "It becomes more and more successful each year."

Students reveal bizarre body talents

"I can pretty much eat a whole horse. When I visit friends' houses, they have to restock the fridge. I should weigh 300 pounds," said a proud Kaylin Shetron⁽¹⁰⁾. Although gluttony often drew much adoration and praise from fellow students, it often failed to match the respect rendered in the wake of gut wrenching contortions.

Story by Vince Donatelli⁽¹²⁾

Scattered throughout the school existed a select handful of amateur contortionists with the uncanny ability to twist into pretzel shapes that Auntie Anne could only dream of.

"Katie Long can put both her legs behind her head. If I tried to do that, I'd break myself," said Chris Zaccagnini⁽¹⁰⁾ in utter amazement.

"I actually saw senior Matt Miller put his hands on his ribs and touch his elbows together," said Jeff Lorent⁽¹¹⁾. "It was freaky and weird to see."

The body contortion craze did not stop with the students though. Mrs. Calisti⁽⁷⁾, fondly reminiscing on her own contortion tale, said "In eighth grade, I had Kody Kurkowski convinced that one of his arms was longer than the other. He can twist his arm the entire way around. It's disgusting."

Flexible and nimble, Zach Zatko⁽¹¹⁾ twists his arms from behind his back, over his head to the front. "If I ever get into a tight spot, I just might be able to get out of it," jokingly said Zatko. He also recognized flexibility as a gift given at birth.

Whether competing in singles or doubles, all tennis players had the same goal, to win the best out of five matches.

Unlike most sports, tennis involved both single competitions and partner competitions for each game.

"Each game consisted of five different matches. There were always 3 single matches and 2 double matches. Which ever team won the most out of those five took the event," said Chelsea L. Kiebler⁽¹¹⁾.

Consequently, both singles and doubles players had to perform their best; otherwise, the entire team felt the loss.

Court surfaces impact play

Players adjust game to compensate for varied courts

Between the freshman practice football field and faculty parking lot lay two caged rectangles of sand and artificial grass. For two sports seasons a year, these rectangles served as the home tennis courts for the tennis players.

"Our court has a lot of dead spots. The unforgiving Pennsylvania weather makes the sand and artificial grass surface difficult to maintain," said Evan Conroy⁽¹²⁾. Not all schools across the area, however. Courts ranged in variety from the concrete of Burrell to the clay of Penn Hills. Due to the fickle nature of the furry green sphere known as a tennis ball, the change of court surface altered how that tiny green entity reacted when impacting the court. The players had to compensate for the change of surface by altering how they played the game.

"The ball bounces faster and more consistently on a harder surface. In warm-ups, we take time to adjust to whatever kind of court we are on," said Chelsea L. Kiebler⁽¹¹⁾.

"All in all, both players are on the same court. You have to make adjustments, but that's all just part of the game," said Conroy.

Serve Up a win

Varied drills diversify team

"We do a lot more tumbling than people think," Katie Long⁽¹¹⁾ said about the volleyball team. "We have to be pretty agile." The team practiced after school to keep up their dexterity.

The junior varsity called their strangest drill Fast Crab Vortex. "What we'd have to do is crab walk down the court, do a tumble, and then hit the ball, all in a five to seven second time frame," said Long. "That one was fun, but my favorite is the Dead Fish Drill. That's the one where you have to serve, and if you serve wrong, you have to lie on the floor while the rest of the team tries to hit you with the ball."

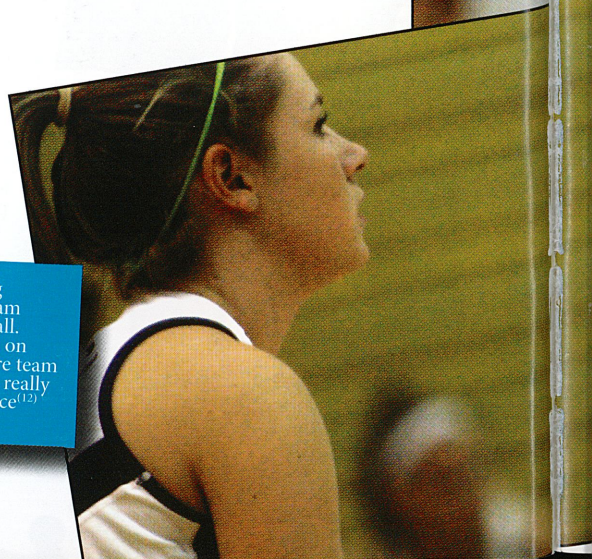

Story by Michelle Krynock⁽¹¹⁾

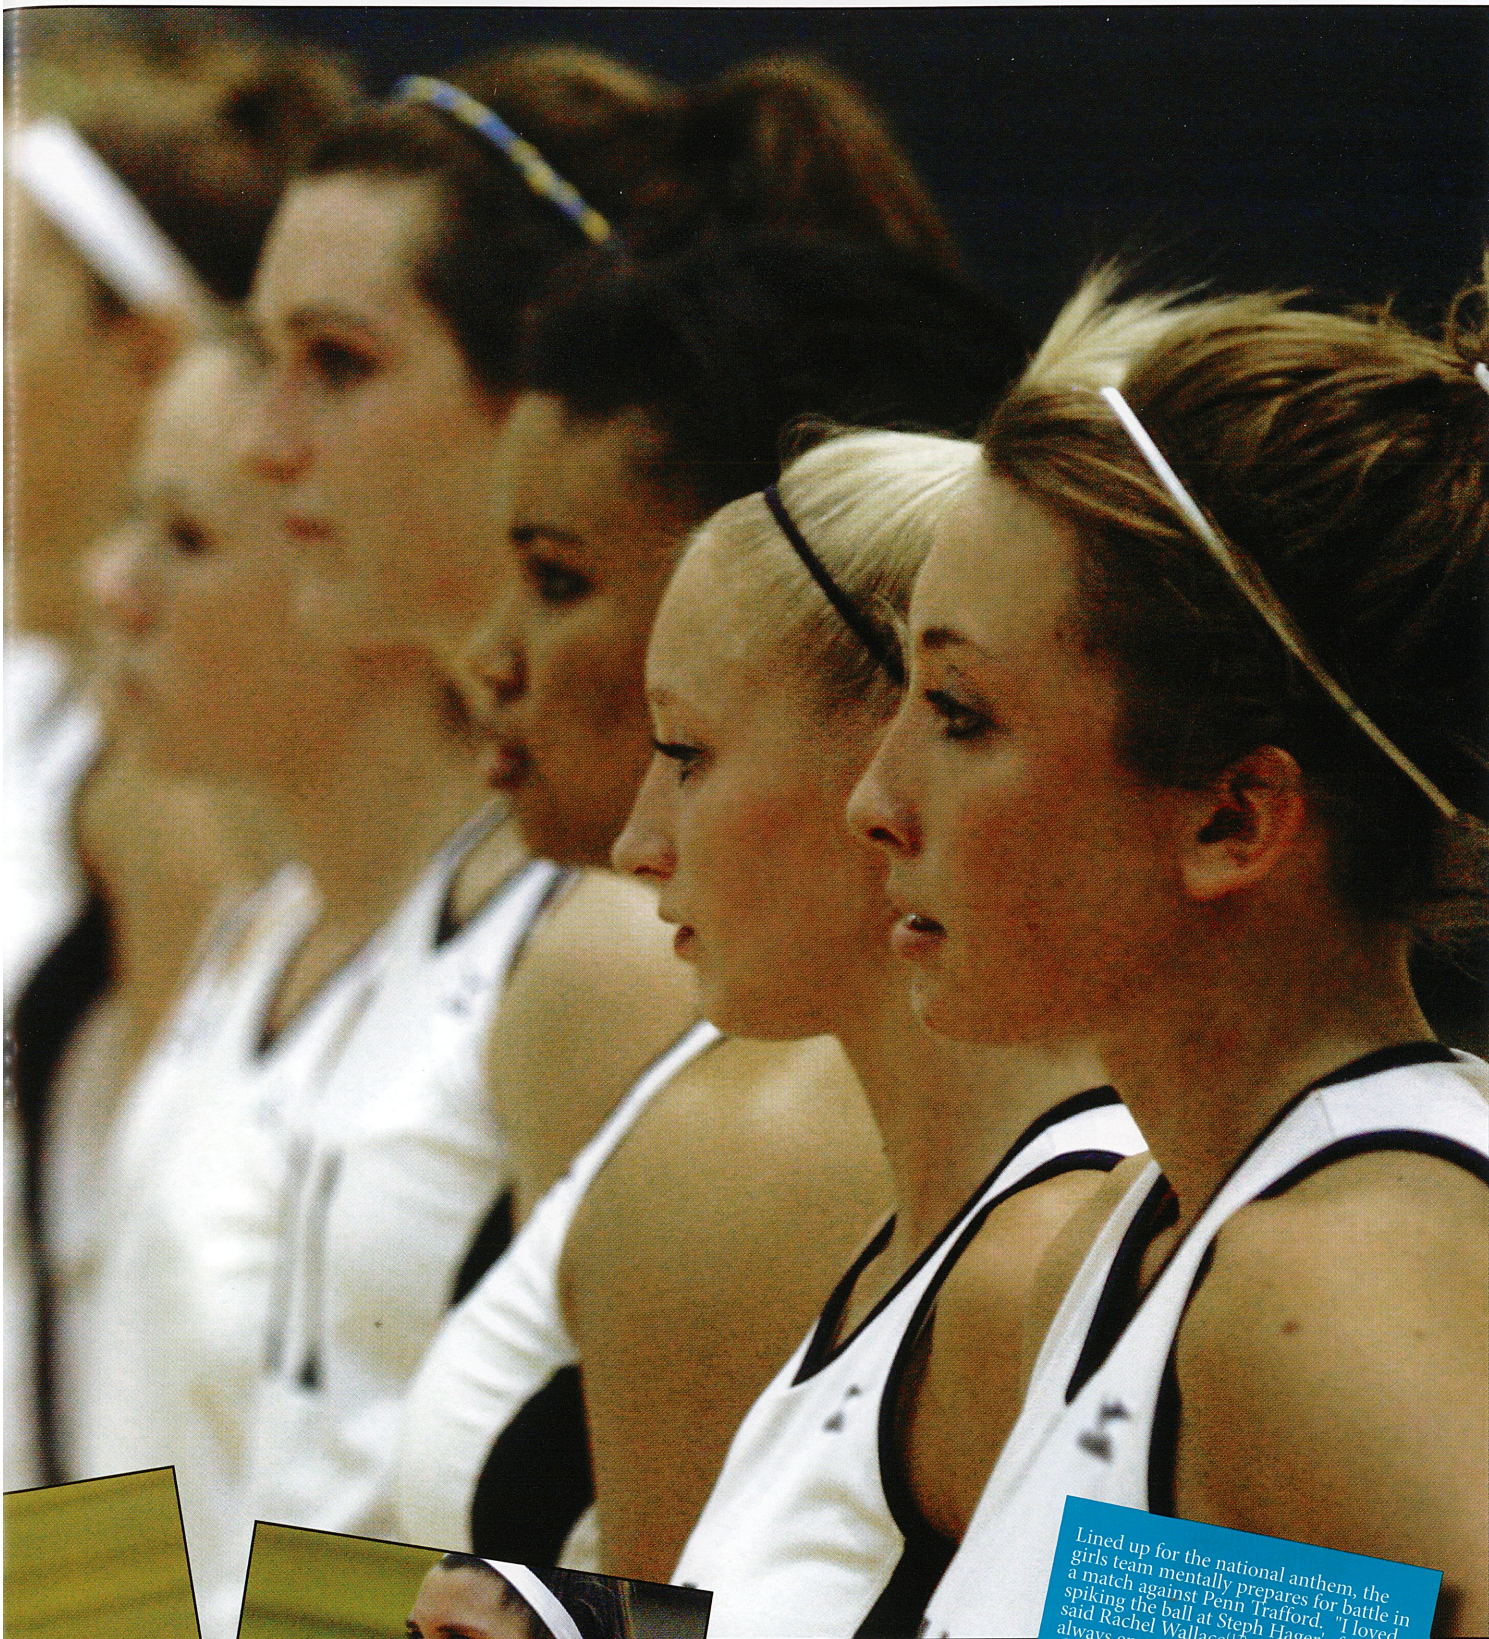

The varsity team also practiced specific drills as well. In describing the Penn State blocking drill, Felicia Reid⁽¹¹⁾ said, "You just go along the net, making different kinds of blocks. It improves our communication skills. There's also the Butterfly Game. It's a serving game where you switch from position to position as setter or receiver and then serve." Reid played as the middle hitter and blocker.

The drills in practice helped make the team stronger. "They helped us win against Norwin, our big rival," said Reid.

Lucky Ladies...

Intently focused on the upcoming serve in a game versus Norwin, Sam Motchar⁽¹²⁾ prepares to pass the ball. When asked about her best friend on the team, Motchar said, "The entire team became my best friends. We were really close." Motchar and Rachel Wallace⁽¹²⁾ often shared a lucky handshake.

Lined up for the national anthem, the girls team mentally prepares for battle in a match against Penn Trafford. "I loved spiking the ball at Steph Hager's face," said Rachel Wallace⁽¹³⁾. "The coaches always encouraged the team to play like champions, both on and off the court."

Honor & Respect...

In an attempt to encourage her team, Nicole Goodiski⁽¹⁰⁾ yells out advice to gain the next point. "Without any communication, you will not win any games. Also, you have to be loud so everyone can hear you," said Goodiski. She loved wearing spandex because of its comfort and high design capabilities.

"I put my blood, sweat and tears into those burgers and hot dogs," said an emotionally charged grill master Jonathan Chepkevich⁽¹²⁾.

Fellow tailgating comrade Zach Simmons⁽¹²⁾ quickly said, "Figuratively, not literally, of course."

With the football games consuming the school's attention most Friday nights in the fall, school spirit rose to awe-inspiring levels. An electric student body could not wait until the opening kick off to show its support.

The annual Cavalier Cookout held above the hallowed ground of Davis Field proved the location to unleash boiling school spirit.

With an abundance of blue and gold body paint and an excess of Oscar Meyer's finest processed meat products, students tailgated with enthusiasm. As chief grill master and primary bank roller, Chepkevich said of the overwhelming school spirit, "The student body showed a lot of support for the team and the Cookout by buying the official Cookout T-shirts which funded all the activities."

Properly nourished and coated in washable Crayola finger paint, students marched down to see their team off to victory.

Prior to each game, the ladies of softball progressed through a variety of warm-ups that prepared them for battle. In pairs, the girls started by taking the field to warm up their throwing arms. Next, the team ran two laps around the field perimeter, followed by nearly a dozen different stretches to help prevent injury. Lastly, they fielded balls in their position warm-up with Coach Haney at the bat.

"The position warm-ups benefitted us most because it helped everyone to work on individual skills," said Brianne Kindler⁽¹¹⁾.

POWER surges into playoffs

Team members reveal playoff stresses

"It gets pretty nerve racking during playoff time," said Chelsea Johnston⁽¹²⁾. "Though, I am not very superstitious myself, the team has a ritual of getting pretzels before the game from Ms. Haney," said Johnston further.

A perennial contender in the WPIAL (Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League) playoffs, the varsity softball team knew a thing or two about competition.

With a beacon of competitive firepower, the team upped the ante for a playoff run. "In doing so well the whole season, when you get to the playoffs, you don't want to let everyone down and ruin the season. So, you excel more than usual to be better than everyone else. You have to go outside yourself to be better than the other teams," said Katie Long⁽¹¹⁾.

With such lofty goals and fierce competition, the playoffs typically and quickly morphed into an emotional powder keg.

Girls discuss battle scars

Bumps and bruises galore

"It goes without saying that girls are way tougher than boys. But, I guess if you want some proof, you can check out the bruises we get after games. That will convince you," said a proud Lyndsey Weiser⁽⁹⁾.

Competitive gender-based banter aside, girls varsity and junior varsity basketball left its mark on the players, literally. War-torn and tattered, the girls battled through a season full of unforgiving falls and punishing elbows, all while racking up numerous black and blue souvenirs.

"Sometimes, after a particularly rough game, we liked to get together and compare our bruises. Believe me, I have seen bruises of every shape and color," said Rachel Weyant⁽⁹⁾. Such a brutal season physically took its toll on the players.

Surprisingly, the overall psyche of the team remained intact. A confident Morgan Waddell⁽¹⁰⁾ said, "I can't even count how many times I've collided with someone during a game. It didn't matter though, because the other team always ended up getting the worst of it."

One It All

In a close game against the Connellsville Falcons, Chelsy Cosentino⁽¹²⁾ defends the ball against her opponent. "The hardest part about playing basketball is continuing to play hard, even when you're exhausted," said Cosentino. She also played catcher for the perennially strong softball team.

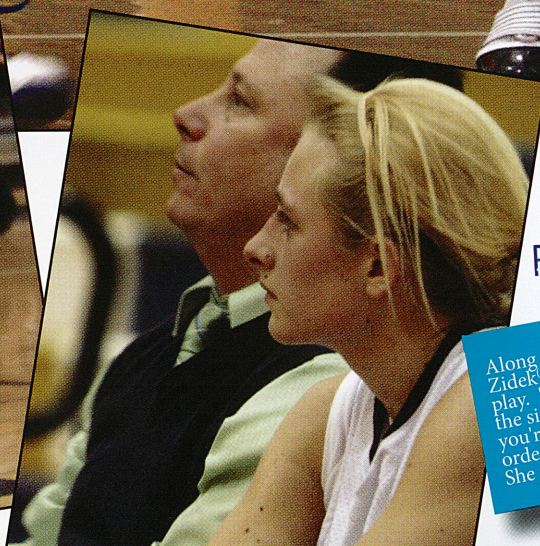

In a heated game against Connellsville, Tara Stolarski⁽¹⁰⁾ steals the ball and heads down court. "The Falcons are a really physical team. They work hard to get the ball," said Stolarski. She scored two points for the home team on the play.

Concert attendees discuss dance injuries

"This big guy hit me in the head. I fell into a speaker and failed to catch myself. My whole hand went numb upon impact," said Jessica Barker⁽¹²⁾ as she described her injuries sustained at a Chelsea Grin concert.

What may have seemed like a horror story to some students represented a lifestyle to the select few others who attended punk and metal shows. With mosh pits, crowd surfers, and the occasional windmill kicker in each crowd, injuries became inevitable.

"Getting hurt is pretty common,"

From javelins cutting through the air to hurdlers soaring over the obstacles, and from long jumpers reaching skyward for more distance to pole vaulters clearing the bar, track and field certainly involved much more than just running.

"Discus, javelin, and shotput are all different. To get more flight, you have to change your technique differently for each," said Samantha Slagle⁽¹⁰⁾.

"Discus involves faster spinning and staying level, javelin is all about the approach, and shotput is just sheer power."

Regardless of the event, track members aimed to improve their times, both on the field and in the air.

First steps count most

"The first few steps determine how well you might do before you even jump. If you start too fast or too slow, your jump will be far behind the board or will get scratched," said jumper Anna Gongaware⁽¹²⁾.

Armed with only a pair of quirky kicks and their dreams, track athletes excelled on nothing more than pure athleticism and fine-tuned finesse. In a sport where every second mattered, every step also served equal importance, including those first few.

"The first steps are important in getting the placement for the ending of the runway. If your placement starts bad, you will either be far away or pass the scratch board," said javelin thrower Felicia Reid⁽¹¹⁾.

With the pressure on, runners, throwers, and jumpers alike aimed to hit their stride in the hopes of finishing steps or, in some cases, feet ahead of their opponents. At the very least, athletes hoped to avoid the embarrassment of a misstep.

Remembering back on a misstep of her own, Reid said, "It was raining very hard and at the end of my throw I tripped and fell on my left side and the bottom of my face. I was covered in mud."

Fast Feet...

In a game against Woodland Hills, forward Pat Carter chases after the ball for a quick return. "You have to be focused and light on your feet in order to adjust to how the defense plays and to get to the hoop," said Carter. Of all teams he played, he disliked playing Latrobe the most.

Tarique Godson⁽¹²⁾ said, "We almost gave up a win by underestimating the talents of AG. We got it together though and came out on top." 4. Zach Barker⁽¹¹⁾ said, "I had to wear braces on my ankles because I had previous injuries from basketball."

"I like biscuits in my tummy made by Beaker and his mommy," Eric Weyant⁽¹¹⁾ whimsically said. A comical attitude dominated the basketball team's practices. Interestingly, Weyant's teasing, nonsensical rhyme originated during practice.

"Everyday at practice, the team collectively had to make fifty three-point shots. As the count approached 50, the players anxiously awaited their chance to get the biscuits, which was a playful synonym for making a nice, clutch fiftieth three-pointer," said Jon Chepkevich⁽¹²⁾.

The team acquired new coach Harry Rideout at the start of the season. "The everyday practice of making fifty three-pointers was one of many new approaches to practice and games implemented by him," said Chepkevich.

Infected with the boys' good humor, Coach Rideout coined some seemingly irrational phrases as well.

Zach Simmons⁽¹²⁾ said, "My favorite was when he told us that all the fluffies were in the paint and we need to protect them."

Similar playfulness also existed on Coach Christie's ninth-grade team. "We were pretty mischievous. The bus rides and practices were always hilarious," said Justin Stascak⁽⁹⁾.

Victory Over Valley...

Trying to find an open man, Tarique Godson⁽¹²⁾ passes the ball to Jon Chepkevich⁽¹²⁾. "Playing Valley was like playing my old team, only we were a lot better than they," said Godson. Godson knew many of the Valley players because he grew up with them.

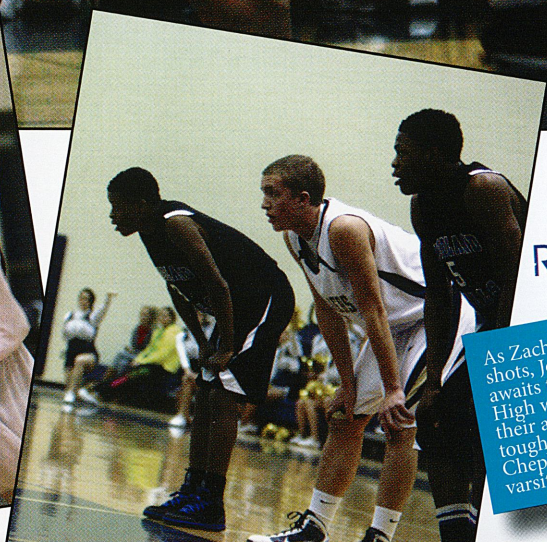

In mid-air, Zach Barker⁽¹¹⁾ tries his best to rebound the ball. "Sometimes you just have to outwork your opponent to get the job done, regardless of what it does to your body," said Barker. He retrieved the ball, travelled down court and scored two points shortly after.

Air It Out...

Rebound Bound...

As Zach Barker⁽¹¹⁾ attempts two foul shots, Jon Chepkevich⁽¹²⁾ anxiously awaits the rebound. "Playing Woody High was a challenge because of their athleticism, but ultimately, our toughness and skill prevailed," said Chepkevich. He played forward on the varsity team.

Study through the night

Last minute study methods vary greatly

Procrastination proved the key to success for students. In fact, this very story itself did not reach completion until the final seconds before its deadline. Whenever students waited until the last minute to complete an assignment, their true creative self shone through and did exactly what proved necessary to complete the task at hand.

Frequent procrastinator and Honor's student Eric Weyant⁽¹¹⁾ said "The key to procrastination is fluff. It's not what you really know. It's what you pretend to know."

Robert Nies⁽¹¹⁾ said of his last minute scrambles, "I'm reliant on Thesaurus.com, Wikipedia, and Google. If all else fails, somebody else probably wrote a similar paper."

Jenny Greenlee⁽¹¹⁾ sometimes studied just moments before a test. "Flashcards! I always make flashcards. They help me with my memorization," said Greenlee.

Katie Mitcheson⁽¹²⁾ felt that her note taking skills reduced the need for procrastination. Mitcheson said "I'm going to rely on my notes. I take pretty good notes, so they always come in handy."

"Of all the different types of lights, I like the colored ones the most," said Zidek. She also said that her favorite part of the holidays involved time spent with family.

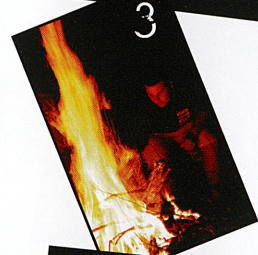

Just One More...

Well past midnight, Jordan Moratti⁽¹²⁾ strategizes to maneuver his team to crush the opposition in Call of Duty: Modern Warfare II. "On weekends, I've been known to stay up all night playing X-Box," said Moratti. He further said, "My parents nag me when I sleep past 11."

Cram Session...

Nearing 2:00 in the morning, Casimir Galiszewski⁽¹¹⁾ crams for a test in Mrs. Schaeffer's precalculus class. "Homework sometimes, I'm up past two in the morning," said Galiszewski. Mrs. Schaeffer also taught AP Calculus, Java, and Honors Precalculus.

To raise money for the soccer team, Sarah Geffel⁽¹²⁾ washes a truck at Advance Auto across from the high school. "Since we were rough-playing soccer girls, we didn't mind getting dirty for a good cause," said Geffel. She played keeper on the varsity team for four years.

Often spotted in his restored 1974 Corvette Stingray, Brandon Miller⁽¹²⁾ said, "We got the car when I was thirteen, and fixed it up. It was just finished this year. The whole thing is original and all numbers match."

Like Miller, other students preferred classic cars over new age automobiles.

Dominic Micale⁽¹¹⁾ drove a more modern muscle car, from an era when fast also usually meant small, due to restrictive emissions laws.

"My car is a 1989 Dodge Charger Daytona ES Turbo with a performance chip. It is a five speed manual and has four cylinders. It tested at 248 horsepower, and was timed going 0-60 miles per hour in 5.7 seconds," said Micale of his pint sized powerhouse.

George Petree⁽¹¹⁾ also had a very collectible 1968 Dodge Coronet SuperBee that needed restoration. Petree said of his muscle car, "It was originally a 383 car, but is now packing a 440 big block. For insurance purposes, those were really underrated at 390 horsepower; modern tests have shown them to achieve around 500 horsepower. The car runs and rides smoothly, but needs a lot of interior work."

Grant Pavlik⁽¹²⁾, chosen friend of Adam Rosensteel⁽¹²⁾, said, "We wanted to really hype up our boys for each match. Mr. Heater came up with the idea of giving all of us singlets to wear in the stands. We did our best to frustrate the other team as much as possible."

Additionally, Andrew Scatena⁽¹¹⁾, friend of Mike McCutcheon⁽¹²⁾, said, "We had around 20 to 30 people taunting the opponents at each match. You know it worked, when they started yelling back."

Kids truly does matter

Wrestling out of weight class takes its toll

Wrestling injuries occurred frequently, and thus, many athletes had to fill in for their larger teammates. When a wrestler beat a heavier opponent, it became clear that the victor was truly a standout. Outweighed and overpowered, the stand-in wrestler had to fight with every ounce of his strength, and make the most of his technique.

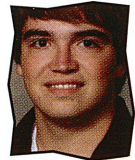

Jordan Zito⁽¹²⁾ wrestled in the 215 weight class, although he weighed only 189. Zito⁽¹²⁾ said "Last year, I wrestled at 215, weighing only 189 pounds. I did okay. My ending record was 19-16, which I think is pretty good for giving up 26 pounds. It was tough because most of the guys I wrestled were stronger than I, and obviously heavier, so I couldn't do certain moves that I would have liked to."

Mitchell Robinson⁽¹¹⁾ also competed under weight, and although he didn't log as many wins, his efforts gained him much respect.

Robinson said, "Last year, I wrestled 140, then at Individuals, I bumped up to 160. I got smashed at that weight because I was used to wrestling kids who were not that strong. My opponents seemed a lot beefier than I because I was like a skeleton at the time."

Where do trainers train?

Training involves multi-faceted skills

"Stuff happens," said Danielle Brown⁽¹¹⁾. This platitude perhaps oversimplified the vital, exhausting role of a student trainer. Student trainers, with their already busy lives, managed to find more time to improve the welfare of others.

Brown said, "All eight of us are there at least half an hour before practice and games and stay an extra 30 minutes afterwards. When injuries occur, we need to be able to quickly identify what's wrong and do our best to help."

Their instructor, Donna Rife, forewarned her potential student trainer aides of the inexhaustible supply of energy needed to perform their tasks.

Donna said, "Student trainers must attend camp at UPMC Sports Medicine Center for three days over the summer. There, they learn taping, applying first aid, back boarding, and the intricate art of making an ice bag."

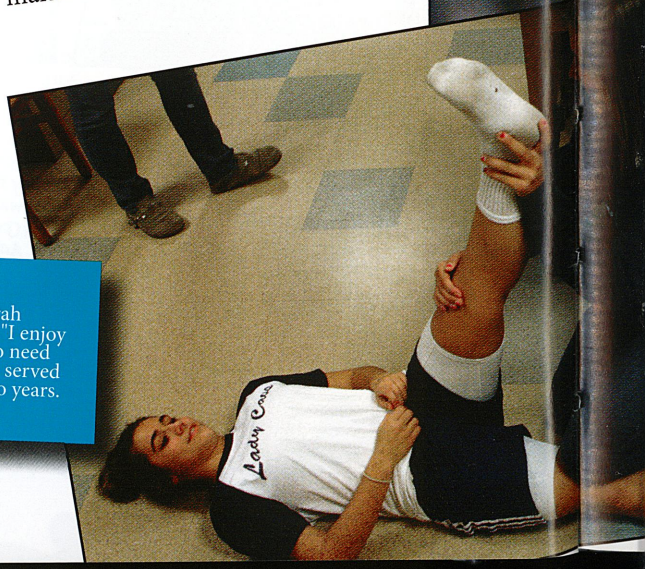

Ready to help at practices, student trainers had to possess accurate knowledge of anatomy; they also had to keep in shape themselves to aid the teams.

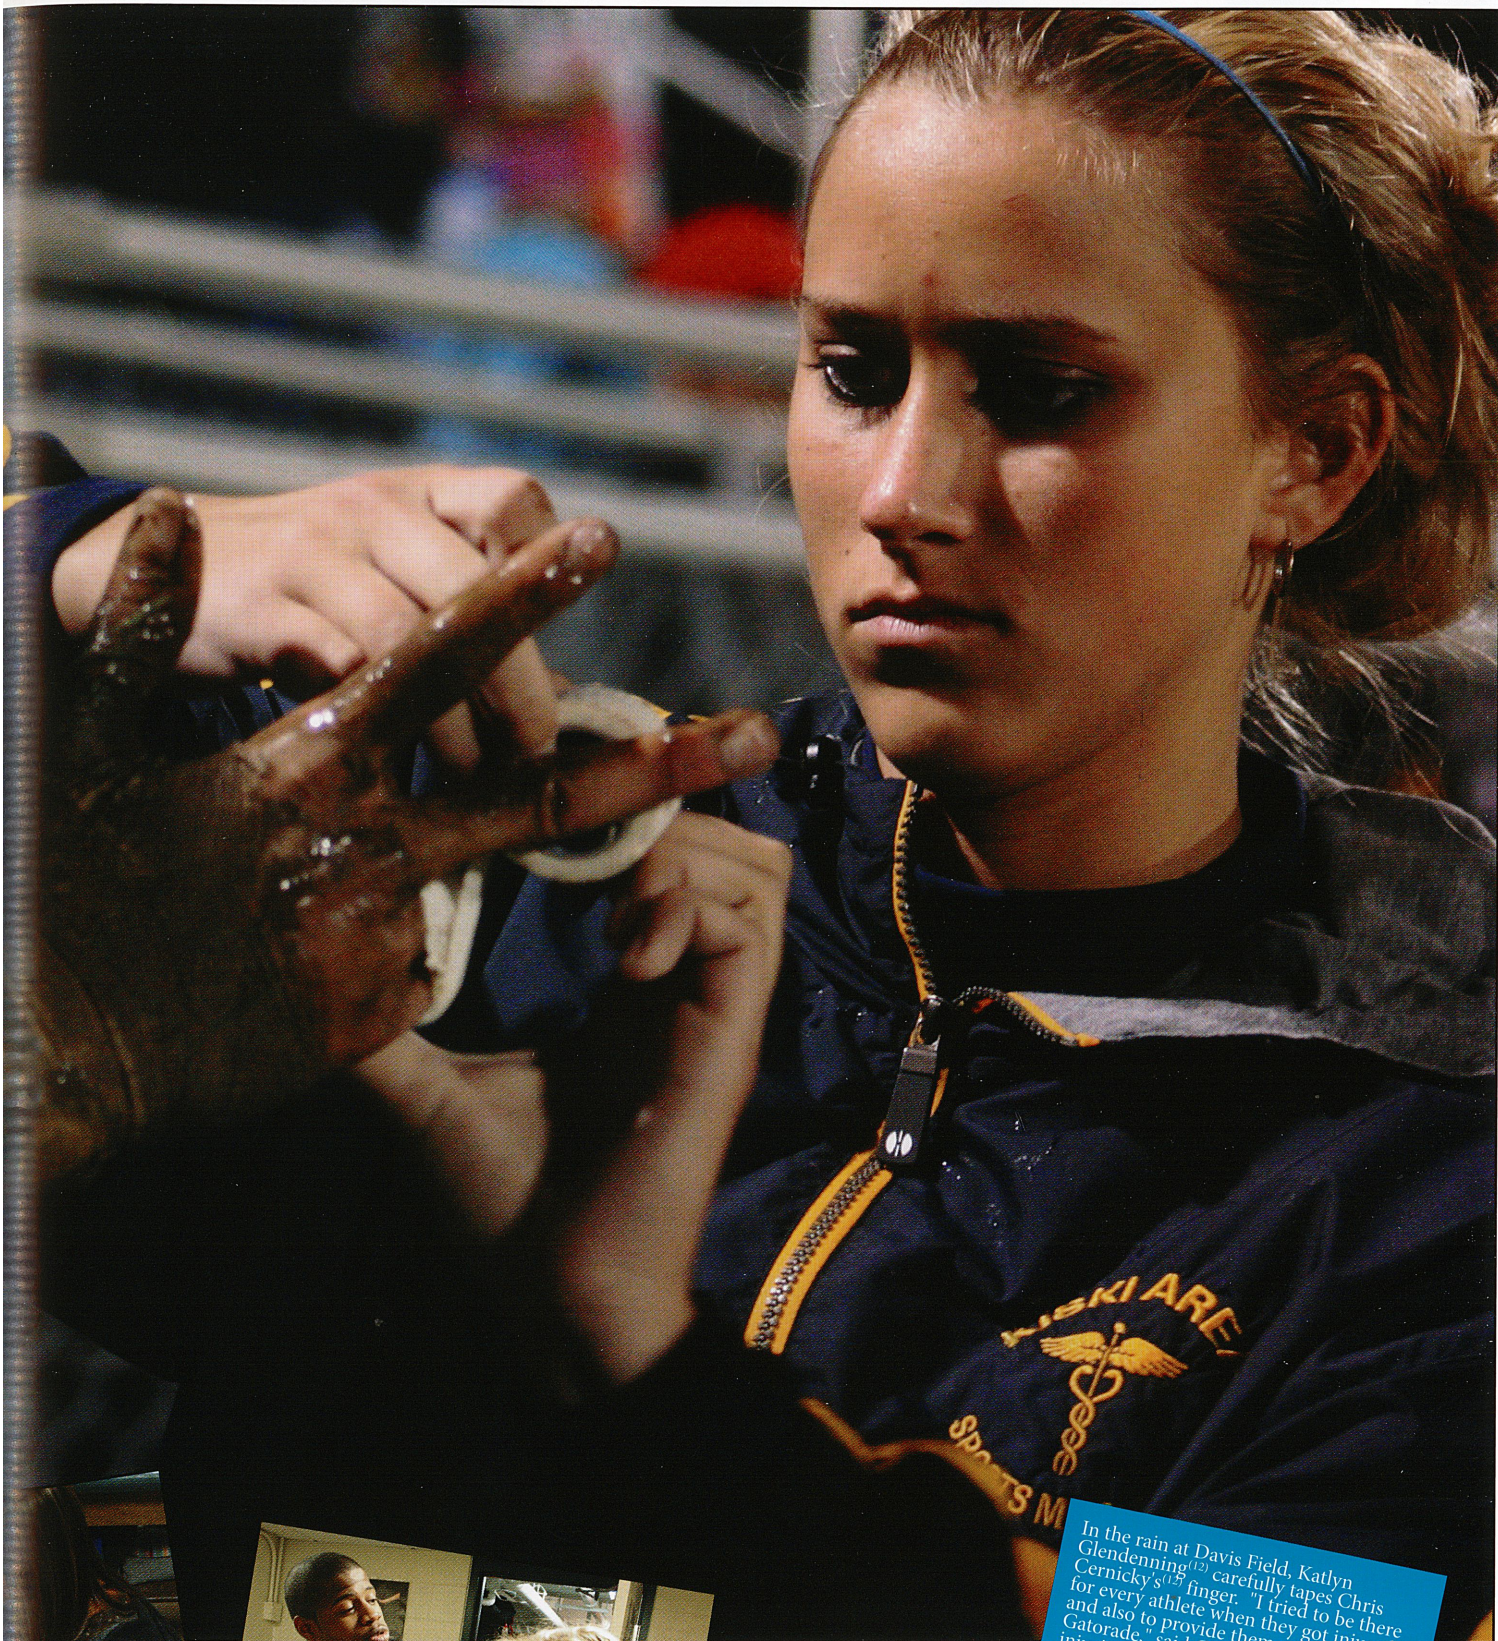

Brown said, "Even though we perform behind the scenes, running up and down the field makes us feel like the athletes."

Goofy antics behind the curtain

Cast, crew reveal what really happened

As the auditorium filled, tensions rose backstage of the 2009 Spring Musical, Thoroughly Modern Millie. However, only those who took the seats witnessed what happened on stage. Only the actors and actresses knew what happened behind the curtain.

"Crazy things happen offstage. What happens backstage should probably stay backstage," said Shelby Klick⁽¹⁰⁾.

"In between scenes Emily, Katy, and I would go in the chorus room hallway and have dizzy races or we made up an awesome rap song," said Lauren Whaley⁽¹⁰⁾.

Backstage time also worked to bring the cast together.

"My favorite part before the musical was the senior circle and listening to all the good experiences that the seniors had. They always made the underclassmen appreciate the musical experience and not what part you get," said Kathryn Summerville⁽¹²⁾.

The cast members used their offstage bonding to prepare for their performance. "Everyone would be really wound up backstage and hug each other all the time. It's easier to overcome stage fright after a few hugs," said Sarah Rozewicz⁽¹¹⁾.

Bring on the break

Holiday traditions vary greatly

The bell sang a carol of its own at the end of the day, signaling the long awaited Christmas break. Italian exchange student Sabina Colasanti⁽¹¹⁾ experienced different Christmas customs and made new memories. "In Italy, Christmas is celebrated a little differently. Special foods are a big part of an Italian Christmas. We have two traditional foods: panettone and torrone. Panettone is a tall bread filled with raisins, and torrone is a big bar of chocolate filled with walnuts," said Colasanti.

Story by Lance Jubic⁽¹¹⁾

Surprising similarities existed between an Italian and American Christmas. "We sing the same carols, only we sing Italian. There is much more caroling in America though," said Colasanti.

Music played a large part in holiday celebrations besides Christian holidays. Cloe Kistler⁽¹¹⁾, who described herself as half-Jewish, said, "We celebrate both holidays at my house." In a unique situation, Jewish hymns such as "Maoz Tzur" float next to notes of "Joy to the World."

Wai-Lun Lin⁽¹¹⁾ had no option but to wait weeks after the holiday break to celebrate Chinese New Year. On February 14th, 2010 officially became the Year of the Tiger. "People born under a certain zodiac sign are said to display characteristics of that animal. Chinese New Year is generally a family reunion," said Lin.

Stand stands for change

Upon the heels of the nationally admired, 2009 CSPA Crown-winning book, the 2010 yearbook staff had the daunting task of producing a publication that could even dare to compare.

"I was excited to turn Kiski's yearbook upside-down this year, and I started with my cover design," said Coeditor-in-Chief Livvy Ciotoli⁽¹²⁾. "We wanted to shake it up a bit with both color and the layout of the book."

Inspired by an ad sent to the school by Mike Taylor of Taylor Publishing, the Stand theme quickly became a favorite of the staff members.

"I like how we only have three sections in the book this year instead of the usual six. It's definitely a step outside the box for us," said reporting editor Sarah Rozewicz⁽¹¹⁾.

Still, photographer Grace Gongaware⁽¹⁰⁾ had a different opinion about what made the book special.

"I love the tilting of the pictures and other elements. The graphic carried through the book provided some character, I thought," said Gongaware.

Whatever the reasons, the 2010 Campus stood out for Stand.

"I think that the staff this year stood for change. Not because we had to, but because we wanted to grow," said Editors' Assistant Jenna Herstek⁽¹²⁾.

Picture Perfect...

At Waynesburg University, Claire Murray⁽¹⁰⁾ toggles through her pictures to find the best one. "Although we didn't learn much from the seminar, we completed a whole lot of tasks on the bus ride," said Murray. The yearbook travelled to Waynesburg in the fall to have their work critiqued.

Fun Mail...

As a goodwill gesture to past yearbook graduates, Lance Jubic⁽¹¹⁾ and Fawn Armagost⁽¹²⁾ prepare boxes of cookies to mail just before finals. "It felt good to surprise the editors from last year. Next year's editors had better remember us," said Armagost. The staff mailed nine boxes of cookies, many out of state.

EDITOR OF THE YEAR

Story by
Mr. Fantaski⁽⁷⁾

For the second year in a row, I have chosen to break my own rule. I have no other choice but to declare Miss Livy Ciotoli⁽¹²⁾ the 2010 Editor of the Year.

I usually do not select Editors-in-Chief for the award. However, in my opinion, Livy has done more than any other senior to move the book forward.

Livy alone created the look of this book. She found the Birth of a Hero font, the set of Splat Circle brushes, and designed many of the spreads seen throughout. She also designed the cover and took a vast amount of the pictures that appear on the pages.

Hence, I offer thanks and congratulations to you, Livy. You stand alone at the top and because of your efforts, so does this book.

At the Labor Day Celebration at Northmoreland Park, Michele Milheim⁽¹¹⁾ sells a drink to a community member. "It's always great to do Key Club events because they are a fun way to give back," said Milheim. The money raised benefited the local Y.M.C.A.

"I stand for NRG, my youth group, and also for Compassion International because they are both example of God's love to the world through our actions."

Banks run out of food

Workers unveil food bank feats

"I'm essentially the best at lifting and transporting senior citizen care packages to cars," said crafty NHS Food Bank veteran Zach Simmons⁽¹²⁾. "Plus, I'd like to believe that I'm no slouch at cart navigation."

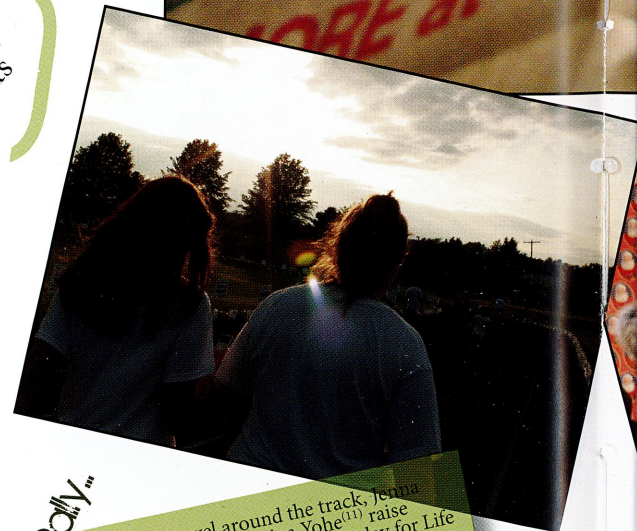

Starting each and every month off right, National Honor Society selected a handful of honorable and able-bodied members to journey across district lines to St. James Church in Apollo.

Armed with nothing more than warm hearts, students rolled up their sleeves hoping to fight hunger, one box of government-subsidized food at a time.

However rudimentary the concept of the food bank appeared, the infrastructure of the supply line proved intricate. "After completing my first tour of duty at the food bank, I was taken aback. The food bank delivers aid by means of an operating system more efficient than Henry Ford's Model T assembly line," said Joe Stopansky⁽¹²⁾, with admiration.

Future NHS Food Bank participant Kate Iseman⁽¹¹⁾ said, "I'm eagerly awaiting the opportunity to give back to my community."

Relay Rally™

As they travel around the track, Jenna Herstek⁽¹²⁾ and Sabrina Yohe⁽¹¹⁾ raise money for cancer victims. "Relay for Life is an important annual event because it collects funds for cancer research to help people like my aunt," said Herstek. The event transpired at Apollo Ridge High School.

Viewed by the entire district on television, Kelly Kuzemchak⁽¹⁰⁾ and Louisa Gibson⁽⁹⁾ acknowledge the businesses which donated to the telethon. "Helping out with the telethon made me feel good inside," said Gibson. Monies raised went to the Salvation Army and St. Vincent de Paul.

At the local Food Bank, Renee Walter⁽²⁾ stacks bags for Operation Santa. "The event was a good way to volunteer locally and help your neighbors," said Walter. Last fall, Walter went to Haiti to help needy orphans.

"Chess doesn't strike many people as a violent game, but I've seen it get pretty intense sometime," said Chess Club President Julia Wasas⁽¹²⁾.

Astronomy teacher Mr. Vergari sponsored the club. "It is a very interesting game and one of the oldest games, having originated in Persia thousands of years ago. We hold competitive tournaments, but experienced players always help the novices in their spare time," said Mr. Vergari.

"I started playing back when I was a freshman and stuck with it," said Wasas. Her talent has helped her rise to president of the club, while earning some rivals.

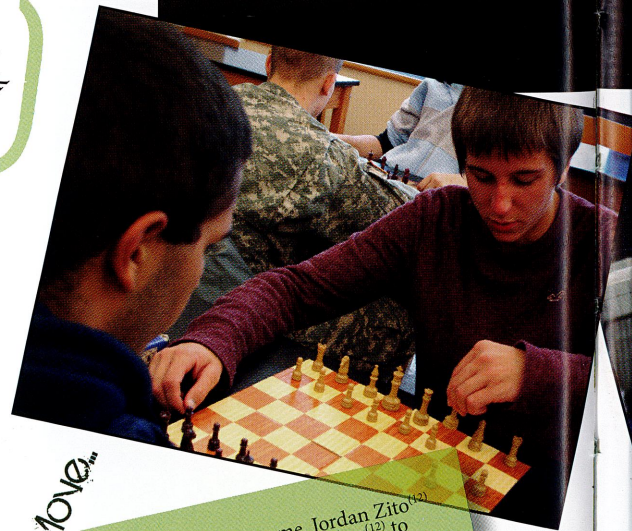

Wasas said, "I have seen some heated competition over a board game that most people don't know how to play. Friends will challenge each other to see who's better."

Mr. Vergari did not play any of the students. "I never play any of the kids," said Mr. Vergari, a tone of slight fear audible.

The club grew with the addition of new members. "Playing chess offers a break from school and it can be an entertaining game," said new member John Rearick⁽¹²⁾.

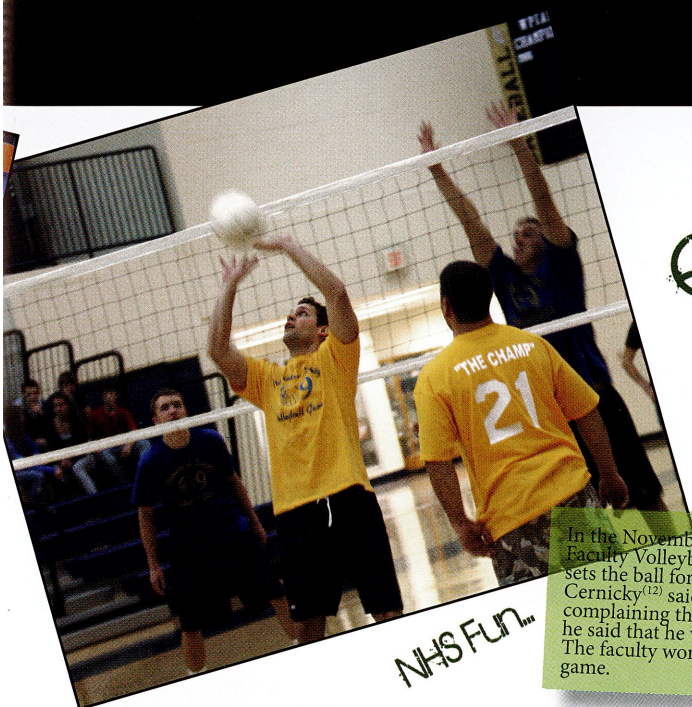

Such passion for an ancient Persian game sparked rivalry and friendship among the chess members.

Eager to learn the game, Jordan Zito⁽¹²⁾ enlists the help of Josh Yamber⁽¹²⁾ to teach him chess. "Since Zito didn't ever play before, he was an easy target," said Yamber. Yamber selected the rook as his favorite piece on the board.

In the middle of an intense chess game with Julia Wasas⁽¹²⁾, Jordan Wilmot moves his pawn to block her rook. "Julia's a tricky one. She's very elusive in the plan to take my king," said Wilmot. He learned to play chess at the young age of 12.

Mock Trial builds character

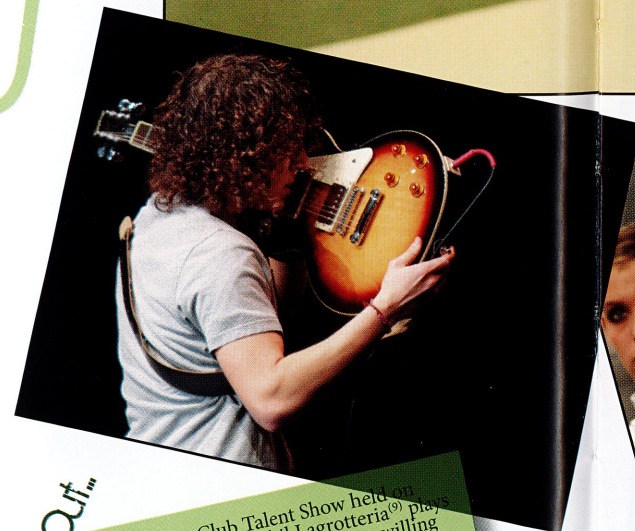

Armed with notebooks containing hours of preparation and their knowledge of the law, mock trial members attempted to sway the judge in their favor.

"There's a lot more acting in mock trial than most people expect," said Kellie Painter⁽¹¹⁾. "Actually it's almost all acting, really. Sometimes, you can really bluff your way through. As long as you look confident and look like you're a real lawyer, you can win."

Joe Stopansky⁽¹²⁾, who played both a lawyer and witness, said, "I think it's harder to be a witness because it's one hundred percent thinking on your feet. You have no idea beforehand what the lawyer's going to throw at you, but you have to somehow be prepared."

Penny Rossi⁽¹¹⁾ said, "I have some trouble getting into my role. My character is such a liar, but I'm not. It's hard to make that kind of person look credible. I have to act like my character, but I also have to argue my side. I can't even sound like I'm arguing or I'd look guilty. I have to choose my words carefully and find a good balance."

Rockin' Out...

At the Key Club Talent Show held on January 22, 2010, Phil Lagrotteria⁽⁹⁾ plays the guitar with his teeth. "I was willing to play the guitar with my mouth like a rock star, but I was not going to smash it on the floor," said Lagrotteria. He had played the guitar since the young age of four.

Flag Focus...

Quote 2 Note

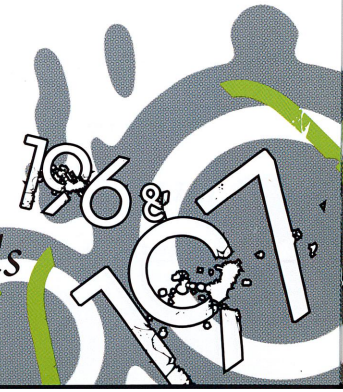

On the day that Mock Trial receives the new case, Kellie Painter⁽¹⁰⁾ reads through piles of paperwork. "When we compete, we have to really know the specifics of the case to coax the witness into giving the answers that we need," said Painter. "It was difficult portraying a lawyer who had to give a long opening."

Trial and Error...

"At McDonalds, try dipping your french fries in your chocolate shake. It's like a party in your mouth."
Steve McCoy⁽¹¹⁾

Members of the colorguard await the signal to form the tunnel for the football players. Gina Erb⁽¹⁰⁾ said, "When we are in front of a crowd, we have to tell a story through our body and dance movements." Many members of the guard also performed in winterguard.

Deck the Halls...

Ready to spread holiday cheer, Emily Summerville⁽¹⁰⁾ sings carols throughout the halls with Jazz Choir just before the December break. Summerville said, "We really enjoyed singing in front of Mrs. Leezer's room the kids in there really loved our songs." Summerville also sang in CenterStage and Women's Choir.

Early bird spirit fingers

Singers jazz up mornings

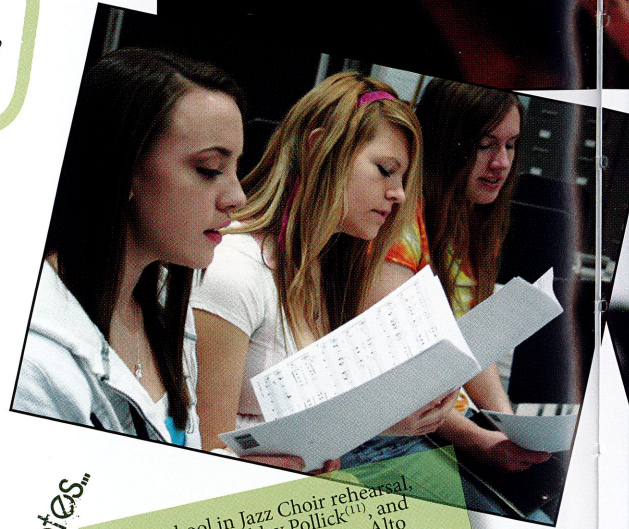

A school day for the majority of students started with a somewhat calm homeroom period. However, the fifteen members of Jazz Choir started working as soon as they arrived at school. Jazz Choir required members to have a high dedication level. They had no time to study or do homework during homeroom, for the ensemble had no time to waste; every minute counted.

"Jazz Choir started each day off on the right note," said Patrick Wilkinson⁽¹²⁾.

Even with the limited practice time, the group managed to produce just as many songs as the larger choruses.

"In the end it was very rewarding because we always came out having great performances and sounding awesome," said Zaccagnini.

"It was absolutely worth the extra effort because we got to perform with our friends and left with a lifetime of memories," said Gretchen Liska⁽¹¹⁾.

Early Notes

Before school in Jazz Choir rehearsal, Elyssa Beer⁽¹²⁾, Ashley Pollock⁽¹¹⁾, and Kalli Hinkle⁽¹²⁾ sing Blue Skies. Alto Kaylin Shetron⁽¹⁰⁾ said, "Jazz Choir was a really way to start each morning. We got a lot accomplished before school because we were dedicated." The choir consisted of nine girls and five boys.

"Keep your head up like your nose is bleeding."
Josh Guzzi⁽¹²⁾

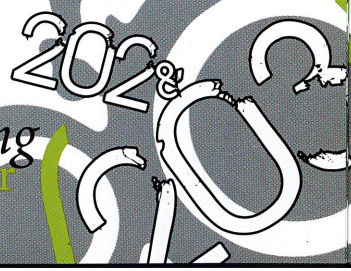

All in a row, members of Cente Stage Show Choir perform Hit Me With a Hot Note at the Dancing with the Teachers event. Soprano Alyssa Kindler⁽¹⁰⁾ said, "My blue dress scratches my arms. Every time I wear it, I have red marks all over. The group also sang at various other community events in the area."

Kick It into Gear...

At Kunkle Park Days held in September, Cecily Ziemianski⁽¹⁰⁾ sings Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy for all in attendance. Ziemianski said, "It was a good experience to sing in front of an outdoors crowd. We could have done without the rain, though." Ziemianski sang Soprano II in the choir.

Band members express feelings

"There are just no words to describe it," said Joe Trisoline⁽⁹⁾. Trisoline had difficulty expressing the feelings he experienced at his first BOA Regional Competition in Massillon, Ohio. For band members who had just practiced for three months and won the largest competition they entered that year, it became their next challenge to explain how they felt.

Veteran band members compared the experience with the only thing they could: other band competitions. Victor Cardamone⁽¹¹⁾ said, "Personally,

I think we performed our best run this season during Massillon Finals. It was definitely the most invigorating feeling I have felt since the regional at Towson in 2007 and Nationals in 2008."

Allison Bollinger⁽¹²⁾ said, "Massillon was more overwhelming for me than even nationals. That's probably because this was my last year and it felt amazing to win my final regional. Plus, it was absolutely breathtaking when Halie caught the rifle perfectly in the closer. The crowd screamed their heads off. I cried."

Tango Time™

During the August 22 band camp practice, instructor Andy Toth⁽¹⁷⁾ teaches the tango to all marching members. "I love Andy. He adds so much to the band's show. He taught the most uncoordinated marching band in Pennsylvania the tango. That's talent," said Rebecca Phillips⁽¹¹⁾.

Story by Michelle Krynock⁽¹¹⁾

show Time...

Just before the opening drum feature at the Regional competition in Massillon, OH, the drumline awaits Sara Sheaffer's salute to start the show. Cody Birch⁽¹²⁾ said, "It takes a ton of practice time to achieve perfection. Only one band can become it in each competition. That was us this year."

Quote 2 Note

"At band, never, ever, EVER, say 'no' to Mr. Pityk."
Jenna Herstek⁽¹²⁾

At the end of the ballad, Caudia McCoy finishes her flute solo while the guard pursues her. McCoy said, "It was nerve-racking being the center focus, but it was an awesome experience." She had played the flute since second grade.

Shawna,

You've grown up so fast into a beautiful young woman and your dad and I are so proud of you! But now, we have to let you go so you can spread your wings to start on your own journey. But always know, even though we are setting you free we will always be here for you whenever you need us! We love you deeply and we know you can accomplish all that you set out to achieve in your life. And I pray the Lord gives you many blessings and keeps you safe along your way.

CONGRATULATIONS!

We Love You,

Sarah,

It just seems like yesterday that we were teaching you how to read. Now you are leaving high school and starting the next chapter of your life. We are extremely proud of your accomplishments, both academically and athletically. You have excelled in the classroom and on the soccer field.

Most importantly, you have grown as an individual who is ready to take on life's challenges. We have no doubt that you will succeed in your college studies and beyond. You've always done things your own way, so don't compromise your individuality as you get ready to take on the world. Just remember that where ever life takes you, we will always be there to support you.

Love,

It seems like just yesterday that our blonde haired, blue eyed little boy was hitting baseballs off a tee, lining Matchbox cars up in a row, and building houses with Legos. How fast the years go. Now you are hitting baseballs hard and far, driving your own car, and striving to design and build beautiful houses. You have grown up into such a wonderful, young man and we have loved watching every minute of it.

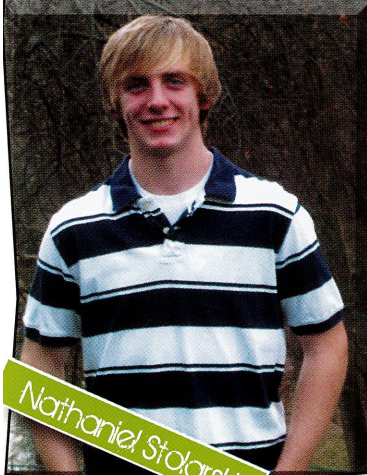

Nate,

You have such a bright future ahead of you and we are confident you will accomplish whatever you set out to achieve. Remember, we will always be here for you!

Dear Anthony,

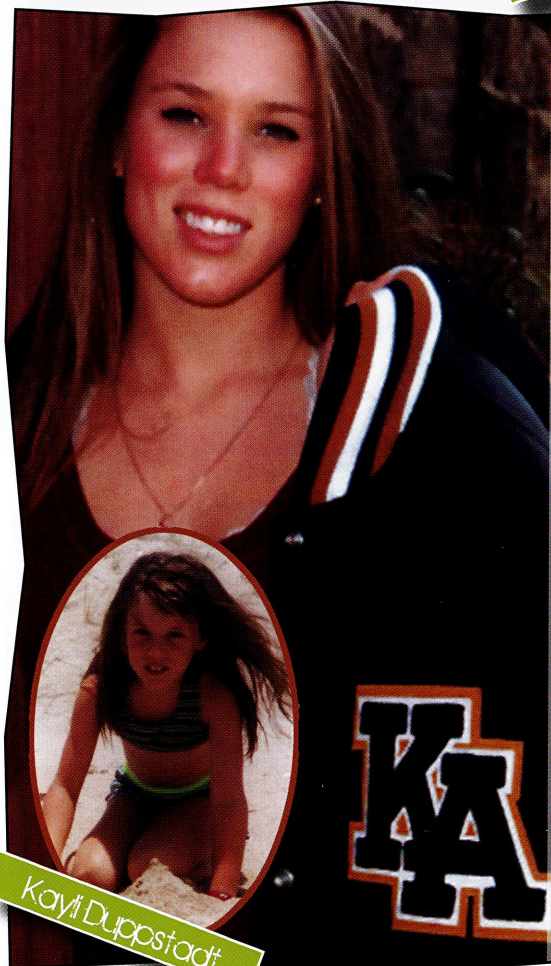

It's difficult to realize that your high school journey has come to an end and our baby boy is now all grown up. The years have flown by faster than we could ever have imagined. It seems like yesterday that you were swinging on Grandma's tire swing, falling asleep listening to Yanni and Andrea Bocelli. It's been an awesome experience watching you grow up! You've gone from playing with action figures and video games to bowling 200-games to performing in the marching band's drum-line for four years. You have always made us proud to be your parents. Even when your little brother came into our lives when you were ten years old, we knew you would be a good example for him, even though you weren't too sure at first. You've become more than that... a mentor, a friend, a great "big" brother. You are proud of your heritage and we know how much "family" means to you. No matter what the future holds you must know that we are proud of the young man you have become. You are kind, thoughtful, funny, compassionate and full of faith. That's all that any parent and sibling can ask of the person they love the most. It's hard to know that this chapter of our lives is over, but we can't wait to see what the next one brings! Good luck in all you do; these high school years have been a blast!

You are an inspiration to all those around you.

Carrying the tuba in Marching Band has made you strong and disciplined in your efforts toward excellence.

Twirling flags in Winter Guard has given you the grace and confidence to face the world.

High honors in scholastics have shown your abilities and determination to expand standards and achieve goals.

Your character and charm, mixed with just enough giggles and wit, along with that unmistakable laugh and sense of humor, is what makes you, YOU.

You have made us both so proud, and we know we will see even greater accomplishments as you set out to pursue YOUR own dreams. So dream big, for these dreams are your future!

I remember the first time I heard the words 'the class of 2010'. It was at your kindergarten graduation. Even though 2010 seemed so far away, I still got a lump in my throat and tears in my eyes.

On the day that you were born, our lives changed forever. We have had so much fun watching you grow. Remember making apple-dumplings for the baby men... playing dress up... "running" on the beach... and taking pooch with you everywhere you went. We have many great memories of holidays and family vacations too.

We are proud to be your parents and even prouder of the beautiful, smart, funny and caring person you have become. We enjoy spending time with you. You make our lives brighter by just being you.

You are about to start a new chapter in your life this fall when you go to college. This will be a time of having new experiences, meeting new friends, and reaching new heights. Remember, we will always be here for you. You deserve the best life has to offer and can accomplish anything that you set your mind to. Go get it!

We love you!

Ever since the day
you were born, you have been the light of my life. It was not long ago that I held you in my arms long after you fell asleep...
I just kept looking at my sweet baby daughter. I look at you today and see my daughter no longer
as a baby, but as a beautiful, intelligent young woman who has made me so proud. Every day is exciting as I continue to watch you grow;
and I am grateful

You danced you way into our lives and changed us from a happy, loving couple to a family. You made our house a home. More importantly, you taught us that a couple's capacity to love is realized by having a child. You are the best sister Emily could ever have. The love you share with each other is one of the most gratifying things a parent can experience. Your willingness to help others and assume leadership roles are just a few examples of why we don't simply love you, but we admire and respect you. As you move on to another phase in your life, we hope and pray that you will remain focused on your goals. You deserve the very best and we will always be here to support you. Never quit dancing. It is a blessing to have a passion in life. You may be moving on, but you will never be far away because you will forever be on our minds and in our hearts.

Dear Kathryn,

Dear Kathryn,

As sisters we have been through so much in the past fifteen years. I can still recall every trip to Babci's house, Rehoboth Beach, summers spent at the Elks or in our own backyard, dance recitals, musical practices, tailgating at Penn State games, Rally in the Alley, cutting down the Christmas tree, KVL games, and so much more. I could go on forever. A lot of people will ask me, "How can you and Kathryn get along so well?" I just answer by saying, "She's my best friend." Really though, I couldn't imagine life without you. You have taught me many lessons and values that help me get through tough times. Now, we must let go of each other's hands, but forever hold the memories that we have shared.

Love,

Sometimes when a child is born, a warmth comes into your life, and I found that in you.

You had such a giving personality, always giving to others. Everyone saw that in you when in your second year of school you were awarded the random act of kindness award; I was so proud.

As you have grown, your outer beauty has matched your inner goodness and you have become the wonderful, young woman I knew you would. You made my heart sing as a little girl, and you still do.

Best of luck in your future.

Senior Portraits

The yearbook staff and the senior photographer conduct an assembly with all prospective seniors in the spring of their junior year to distribute all pertinent information concerning senior pictures. The senior photographer offers various times for individual appointments, as well as a wide variety of packages from which to choose. While we certainly encourage it, students do not have to purchase pictures or packages from the senior photographer. However, each student must pay a sitting fee for the processing and developing of the pictures. This year, Hourglass Photo charged $12. This price may increase from year to year due to rising costs involved.

The yearbook staff can guarantee that individual senior pictures will appear in the book only if each student schedules his/her appointment on time, arrives for the shoot on time, and chooses which proof to appear in the book on time. No profile shots will appear in the yearbook. Additionally, the yearbook staff and the senior photographer will define all due dates, and will include these in the information given out at the senior portrait assembly.

By having portraits taken by the same photographer under the same conditions, the yearbook staff can implement uniform quality for all photographs, thereby serving the best interest of all students.

For the 2010-2011 school year, the district will utilize the talents of Ms. Paige Duckworth for all senior portraits. Her establishment, Hourglass Photo, resides at 2 Labelle-Vue Road - Vandergrift, PA - 15690. Telephone: 724-568-3128.

Client Satisfaction & Pricing

By virtue of the fact that the yearbook represents a student conceived, planned, and produced publication, the staff cannot guarantee complete satisfaction to the purchaser. Hence, the staff will refund no money for poor portrait quality, misspelled names, etc. Books returned for refunds must not have any writing in them, and cannot display any damage obviously done by the student. Once returned, the book becomes the property of the staff and may be resold at the current cost.

The yearbook staff will exchange books only for certain reasons. No exchanges will transpire unless the adviser determines that the book has a major flaw such as missing pages or pages printed upside-down. All refunds and exchanges happen only at the discretion of the adviser.

Should the yearbook staff have no record of a student ordering a book, the student must produce a receipt or a cancelled check to demonstrate proof of the purchase. No student may pick up a book for another student.

Students order books during Campus Week, the first full week after Labor Day. Each student must fill out a yearbook ordering form, place it in an envelope with the appropriate payment, and drop it in the wooden collection box outside room 106. The yearbook staff accepts 950-1000 orders and then starts a waiting list. Students on the waiting list pay $10 more and do not pay for their books until distribution day. Additionally, any student who signs the waiting list or waiting list form must pay for his/her book at the end of the year or the staff reserves the right to hold report cards/diplomas; every unpaid book/balance represents a student debt.

Students may pay half during Campus Week and half after the December holiday break if they wish. Still, if the student misses the announced deadline for second payments, a late fee will occur.

Senior Specials

While considered inappropriate in some yearbook judging forums, the Campus staff feels that the Senior Specials represent a Cavalier tradition worth keeping. Sometime after the winter holiday break, the yearbook staff designates one week for all seniors to vote on their favorites in a wide variety of categories. The staff collectively decides which categories to include and which to eliminate. Still, the staff tries only to include categories that reflect positively on the students.

Only the yearbook adviser counts the ballots for each and every category; yearbook staff members play no role in the election.

To maximize the opportunity for each student to receive a Senior Special, no senior may win two categories, with the exception of the "Best Friends" and "Class Couple" categories. Should one student win two or more categories, the yearbook adviser governs the final decision on how to award each category.

Senior Directory & Parent Ads

Determined by deadlines, the yearbook staff designates a single week, usually in January or February, for seniors to complete a directory sheet that asks for all of the clubs, sports, music ensembles, academic curriculum, and future plans for each senior. The yearbook staff includes only directory information submitted by the designated deadline and reserves the right to expunge any entries that include falsified information.

On the first day of school, each senior receives a form that defines everything parents need to know about Parent Ads. The form defines pricing, requirements for the ad, and relative deadlines.

Later in the year, the yearbook staff will remind parents with another copy of the Parent Ad flyer.

The yearbook staff does its best to personalize each ad, and this takes a considerable amount of time. Furthermore, each year, the staff has only a limited amount of space for Parent Ads. Hence, to guarantee that individual ads will appear in the book, the staff suggests that parents submit them as soon as possible. The Campus staff reserves the right to deny Parent Ads once the designated amount of space has been depleted.

Letter from the Editors

From Brynn (the Mother): I must admit I did not know what to expect when I walked into the yearbook room at the end of my ninth grade year and accepted the monumental task of... organizing the CD drawer.

From Livy: It is hard to believe there was a time when I was not a yearbook nerd.

To the people who have shaped our lives: Anna and Christine, you formed an angel and devil tag team that overcame all the business staff's trials and tribulations, from matching records to finding those who never go to homeroom. Maddie, we could not leave business staff in more capable hands next year.

Vince & Ben, the fearless leaders of literary staff: you brought so much more to the yearbook room than just writing talent, especially your humor. Lance and Joe, with your unique personalities, you contributed incredible stories to the book, and we know your writing prowess will increase for next year. After all, you learned from the best.

Sarah and Kate, using your experience from last year, you guided reporting staff to another year of superb captions and questions. Megan and Jenny, although first year editors, your creativity and work ethic proved invaluable for all of reporting staff. Sarah, Kate, and Jenny, we can't wait to see what you create next year.

Megan, we look forward to the epic journey to find the dinosaurs.

Fawn, using your artistic talent, you produced many beautiful pictures for the book, while your perfectionist attitude led to some of the most amazing pictures we have seen. Claire and Grace, although you were new this year, your skill and dedication made us feel as if you were professionals.

Jenna, you took on more extracurricular activities than we have fingers to count, but managed to go above and beyond your directory duties for our staff. You provided tremendous aid to everyone.

Mrs. Filer, your dedication this year truly made the daunting task of creating yearbook considerably easier. You also helped Mr. F. to keep his sanity in check. Thanks for that.

Mr. Fantaski, our yearbook would not be anything near its current state without your guidance or personal dedication to making the book stand out. You appreciated the staff as individuals instead of just a collective group of students. You are easily the best club advisor we could have asked for, and we are eternally grateful for everything you do for yearbook.

Worst Pics

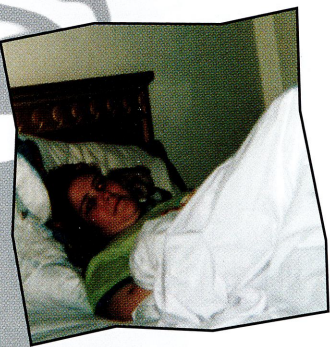

A Personal Note from Mr. Fantaski, Campus YB Adviser

Reflecting a long Campus tradition, the yearbook staff now offers, once again, its worst pictures of the year. The student body looks forward to this part of the yearbook yearly and has submitted all of the photographs that appear throughout the listing. The yearbook staff added quotes from the people in each picture to add even a bit more whimsy to the book.

Realize that in judging, some adjudicators have advised the Campus staff to eliminate this portion of the book because they deem it inappropriate. However, based upon the students' requests and love of the tradition, we have included it again and will do so as long as the students demand it.

Enjoy these shots and we hope that our efforts have produced a book that each student will cherish for a lifetime.

Awards

The 2010 Kiski Area High School Yearbook staff belonged to several professional organizations that included NSPA, CSPA, and PSPA. The 2009 Campus book became a CSPA Crown semi-finalist, the first in the district's history. The 2009 book also earned an All-American rating from NSPA. Additionally, Kiski's 2009 yearbook won the state of PA in PSPA judging, capturing the title for two years in a row. Furthermore, Taylor Publishing chose the 2010 book to run as a national sample. Hence, the company will send Kiski's book to high schools all across the nation as an example of one of their best.

Book Specifics Prices

This book employed a smythe type binding with 100# enamel paper for all 280 pages inside. The yearbook staff utilized Adobe InDesign CS3 and Adobe Photoshop CS3 to complete the publication on one single computer. The staff used two fonts throughout the book: Minion Pro and Birth of a Hero. Taylor printed the lithocote cover with a matte finish. Additional cover treatments included varnishing on the horizontal strip and embossing on various other elements. The company printed the endsheets using a 4-color process.

Campus Prices:

- Book: $60 (if paid on time)
- Waiting List: $70
- Parent Ads: 1/8 pg. ($45), 1/4 pg. ($75)
- Protective Cover: $1
